TAFT HELPS DEDICATION OF Y. M. C. A.

By William Hoster.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 27.—A Southern greeting was given to President Taft here today. Whistles and bells all over the city joined in the greeting. The President and his party were delayed on the river during the night owing to the extremely low stage of the water, and did not reach here until nearly 11 o'clock.

When the flotilla with the steamboat Oleander, bearing the President and his party, finally appeared 200 yards in advance of the long column, flanked on each side by the torpedo boats, the people shouted their greeting.

Major James H. Malone, in welcoming the President, said: "We remember with much pleasure that while you were a United States Circuit Judge, you came often to Memphis and here dispensed justice with so even a hand as to win the confidence and good will of all whose fortune it was to appear in your courts."

He said the attitude of President Taft toward the Southern States presaged nothing but good for the South during the Taft administration. When the Mayor turned to the question of river improvement and "fourteen feet through the valley," advocates of the plan for a deep waterway from the lakes to the gulf gathered near and interrupted the speaker with cheers.

President Taft had on previous occasions declared his waterways position and today he reiterate his opinions.

Following the welcoming exercises the President and the other members of his party entered automobiles and joined a parade through the streets of the city.

The President and his personal escort left the main body of the procession temporarily to go to the Young Men's Christian Association's new building, the dedication of which had been postponed for the President to perform. He spoke of the great work accomplished throughout the country by the association.

EX-MAYOR CASEY OF LOWELL WEDS

LOWELL, Oct. 27.—Former Mayor James B. Casey and Miss Margaret A. Wood, daughter of the late Chief of Police Frank C. Wood of this city, were married today at the church in the chapel of the Sacred Heart Roman Catholic Church. The Rev. T. Wade Smith, O. M. I., rector of the church, officiated. He was assisted by Brother D. Franklin Wood, O. M. I., brother of the bride.

SUMICHRAST LECTURE.

The course of seven lectures to be given before the Victoria League by Professor E. C. de Sumichrast on "The Origin and Growth of the British Empire," begins this evening in Unickering Hall, Huntington avenue. The first lecture is a description and stereopticon illustrations of the various countries composing the British Empire of the present day, and interesting comparisons of the parallel growth of the United States, France and Germany.

'GIVE US HOME RULE,' PLEA OF PELLETIER

An audience that overcrowded every bit of standing room in Faneuil Hall went wild at today's Democratic poundary rally when James H. Valley and Joseph C. Pelletier launched the opinion that "home rule and popular self-government cannot be trodden under the feet of any political tyrant." "Home rule for Boston and the cities and towns of the Commonwealth" was the chief topic of the Democratic candidates for Governor and District Attorney.

Eugene N. Foss, Democratic nominee for Lieutenant Governor, Congressmen Keliher and O'Connell and Fred W. Mansfield, counsel for the State branch, A. F. of L., were the other speakers. Patrick M. Keating, former law partner of the late Thomas Gargan, presided.

With the exception of Mr. Foss, who delivered a business man's argument, the speakers delivered speeches that were among the most seen heard in this city. The gathering of 1,500 was enthusiastic.

"No better place in this city or in this State could be chosen in which to denounce the rule of Boss Lodge and to claim for the people home rule and fair play," said Mr. Pelletier.

Boston Wants Home Rule.

Boston wants home rule, Chelsea wants home rule. Boston has been denied the right to pass upon a charter. She is governed by commission appointed by the governor, and now Senator Lodge would have the people of Boston his dictators and place in the office of District Attorney a representative of the minority party, his own campaign manager, Mr. Hill.

"I want to call attention to the fact that Mr. Hill has not placed in his position by the people, but that he was appointed by the Governor as a representative of the minority party in a county which is Democratic. This in the only county where the Democrat can hope to have a county office. Ring rule and boss rule in every other county has persistently excluded Democrats from the county offices. They would now invade Suffolk and talk nonpartisanship. The Governor in accepting my resignation as a member of the Civil Service Commission described the position as a political office, and he was right.

"I want to ask Mr. Hill to keep on explaining about the Berry case, as the people are not satisfied as to why he let a $300,000 thief go free.

"I want to ask Mr. Hill to explain to the people of Suffolk County on what theory he took the public platform the confession of a young girl, made to him behind closed doors in Mr. County as district attorney, on what theory did he violate that confidence? They did he deny tell an slightist side story from the public platform?

"Free from Pledges.

"I want to ask Mr. Hill if he believes in the Grand Jury. If so, why did he not lay before them the facts in the Copley Building Trust and other important matters affecting the morals of the community which have been in his office for a long time?

"I want to reiterate that I am free of pledge or promise made to any man or set of men. My only pledge is to the people, and is that in the office of district attorney I will give the square deal to every man, woman or child, be he or she rich or poor.

"I want to ask not only your votes on election day, but your active support in behalf of Valley, Foss and the entire Democratic ticket for with your cooperation a tremendous success is within our reach."

WASHINGTON ST MOTION FILMS

The taking of a moving picture of Washington street to be exhibited at the Boston 1915 Exposition in the old art museum building was witnessed by thousands this noon, and the huge placarded invitation to the multitude on the side of a trolley car, "Come and see your picture," was vociferously accepter with cheers.

Starting at Adams square with their motion picture camera mounted on a small flat car which in turn was pushed by one of the Boston Elevated motor-less service cars, the trip was made in about ten minutes. Two motion picture men rode the way and made a partial success of dragging back the Dewey boys and a small men who ran along the cars clear to Eliot street, bicycles and hopefuls to have themselves in the pictures.

Several very enterprising advertisers made dash after dash across the fours line and hope to be there before the multitudes who will see the pictures.

TWO HURT WHEN DOG SCARES HORSE

A dog frightened a horse, driven by James McCusker in Oakland street, Dorchester, today and the animal ran, throwing McCusker and Ellen Healy into the street. Both live in the Walker estate. Milton. McCusker received contusions of the head and the woman escaped with a slight shock.

BIG STORM IS DUE IN BOSTON MONDAY

A severe storm, with heavy rains, followed by intense cold, is due to arrive on the Atlantic seaboard Monday, according to the prediction made by the weather bureau at Washington to-day.

The storm is expected to arrive on the Pacific coast tomorrow and extend as far East as the Rockies Friday. It will be central over the Mississippi Valley, and Saturday and Sunday it will reach the Great lake regions.

LIMERICK MEN TO DANCE.

A social and dance will be given under the direction of the Limerick Men's Club tonight in Paine Memorial Hall, Appleton street, to which have been invited the high officers of the County Board of Limerick Irish County Clubs. A program of Irish music will be given.

ASK RELEASE IN $500,000 ACTION

Alleging that Herzog Brothers of London is a corporation which does not do business in this State, counsel for Kidder, Peabody & Co., appear for Herzog Brothers, asked release from an attachment for $500,000 in the Superior court to-day. Kidder, Peabody is attached as trustee in a suit brought by Clara E. Wellman against Clara D. Dennett. Mrs. Wellman is the widow of George H. Wellman who was president of the Metropolitan Stock Exchange, and she sued Mrs. Dennett for $500,000 for alleged alienation of her husband's affections. Mr. Wellman gave Mrs. Dennett in his lifetime, it is alleged, about $750,000 in bonds. Herzog Brothers of London being the trustees.

FEARED OLD AGE, WOMAN A SUICIDE

HAVERHILL, Oct. 27.—Fearing the helplessness of old age, Mrs. Ida Bolten, sixty, ended her husband and killed herself by taking gas from a tube. Her husband reached the room early to-day by climbing to a window on a ladder and crawling through.

LOGUE TO SPEAK.

The semi-monthly meeting of the West Dorchester Improvement Association will be held in Harvey Hall to-night. Charles Logue, former member of the Schoolhouse Commission, will speak on "The Housing of the People."

PIANO MUSIC AT BURGLARY.

Mrs. John F. White of No. 85 Wellington Hill street, Mattapan, played the piano last night and she failed to hear two crook thieves enter the house and get away with her child's penny savings bank containing $3. The Dorchester police were notified of the theft to-day.

RIOTS OFF, STRIKE TO END SOON

LUDLOW, Oct. 27.—The 3,000 strikers in the mills of the Ludlow Manufacturing Associates are looking to-day for a settlement of their trouble at a conference to-day at Woodward of Boston, treasurer of the company.

The strikers express their confidence that Mr. Holland will yield some of their demands and that they will be back to work without further resort to force.

The police here on the strike well in hand The strikers on Keep moving all the time not being allowed to congregate out of doors anywhere. Near the boarding house where the Greek strike-breakers are kept there is a large force of police, who drive off any person seeking for a striker. The men themselves declare they are not looking for trouble.

Many of the leaders heads among the strikers declare that the strike will not last another day and that the Greek strike-breakers will be sent away by the company before the day is over.

In anticipation of a renewal of yesterday's riots, a guard of police surrounded the plant at the usual hour of opening at 7 o'clock, but no disturbance at that time. Word has been passed among the strikers that the police were prepared for any emergency.

It was said at the office of the company that no attempt would be made to open the mill to-day, and probably not until the strike is settled.

TWO STABBED IN A HOLD-UP

Bernard L. Gannon and Joseph P. Longnie, both over twenty-three years of age, and both employed by the Boston Elevated, were stabbed in the left leg. Gannon was taken to the City hospital. His wounds aroused, and then brought back to the police station.

FEAR 35 LOST ON HESTIA

EASTPORT, Me., Oct. 27.—Word was received here this afternoon from Yarmouth that a ship's boat containing two bodies drifted ashore at Peabody, near there, today, and that another boat with a body in it drifted ashore at Digby. The second boat contained a life preserver.

The drifting of the two boats means that the death list of the Dorcham line steamship Hestia will be thirty-five. Six persons have been rescued. One of the two other lifeboats which put off from the sinking steamer was seen to go down, and the third, with Captain Newman and twenty-one men, had but a slight chance of weathering the heavy seas.

The death list is as follows: Captain W. W. Newman of Eastport, Maine; First officer D. McNair, Second Mate J. M. Dugan, Boatswain J. G. Gammidge, Ship's Carpenter J. Colwell, Storekeeper W. Warnock, First Engineer D. Munn, Third Engineer Scott, Fourth Engineer Bent, Dunkeman McDonald, Seamen John Smith, Green Murray, Chilson, McCaughels, John Galloway, Roy Galloway, Daniel Cowan, immigrants from Glasgow.

Also lost, six firemen, names unknown; four trimmers, chief steward, assistant steward, cook, apprentice cabin boy, two unknown seamen.

Six Are Safe.

Exhausted by their thirty eight hour battle for life in the rigging of the wrecked steamer, sixteen of Grand Manan, the six known survivors of the crew were landed to-day at Seal Cove, on Grand Manan, by the local Cove life savers, under Captain Frank L. Benson. The six men were Third Officer S. Stewart, Second Engineer M. Morgan and Able Seamen Keane, McVicker, McKenzie and Smith.

The survivors told how seven of their comrades drowned before their eyes during the foundering of the boats. The second lifeboat which is being hunted for, had got from the ship safely, but the last boat to leave Pod through the breaking of the forward tackle when all but four of the remainder of the ships party were in her. All were thrown into the sea, but some managed after tackle and the life boat dropped and righted.

As the boat was carried away one man was seen by her. One or two of the others who were battling in the water were taken into the Captain's boat, and two others were declared by the four men who had remained on the Hestia.

Lifeboat Turns Turtle.

The Captain's boat was last seen when making for Lurcher Rock Light, about four miles away, and was undoubtedly lost. The big Lord Kitchener to-day joined the fleet hunting for the missing lifeboat.

One boat that succeeded in getting away from the Hestia made but a few yards progress and then was tossed by a monster wave, turning turtle.

That a small boat overcrowded with the crew and two Scotch boys who were passengers could live in the storm is considered almost impossible. It is survived the vicious gale and safely passed through the rocks and shoals, but the men in her, however, with scanty clothing, little water and practically no food. Their predicament, it is best is grave.

The boat in the six men rescued at the point of death by Hunters from the wreck of the Hestia is the only clew to the safety of the lifeboat.

Hope Is Abandoned.

These men, who clung to the rolling steamer as she pounded on the shoal early in the morning of terrific seas, tell how they watched the overloaded craft struggle for life as it was pitched about. Hope for open sea propelled by a steady offshore gale.

The men who remained on the Hestia because they could not get off and probably are alive now because of that, say their comrades in the open boat slowly crept away, their little craft staggering until the rising seas no longer showed it.

The work of the rescuers will be kept up until the last chance, but there is no hope in the hearts of the seafarers, who know the northern coast and its waters.

Police Have Difficulty in Controlling Mob at Examination of "Dr." Hill, Accused of Murdering Amelia St. Jean and Dismembering Her Body.

FALL RIVER, Oct. 27.—Men and women fought to gain admission to the Fall River courtroom to-day when Frank L. Hill, charged with the murder of Amelia St. Jean, was arraigned for preliminary trial. District-Attorney Swift said that enough testimony would be taken to establish that Hill should be held for the action of the Grand Jury. Among those in the courtroom were the relatives and friends of the dead girl.

Hill sat in the dock cool and collected. He followed the proceedings with the closest interest. His lawyers, Higgins & Hanify, looked after his interests. In opening the case District Attorney Swift recited briefly the story of the discovery of the crime.

"Evidence pointed to Frank L. Hill," he said, "as being implicated and he was taken into custody and I think rightly."

It was announced that there were twenty-one witnesses for the government. Among them in the courtroom was Mrs. Joseph St. Jean, the girl's mother; her aunt, Mrs. Eva Lemoureux; Wilfred Taibault and Herbert Allmrose, the Fall River letter carrier.

Tells of Discovery.

The first witness called was George W. Potter, who found the first portion of the dismembered body of the victim of the tragedy, two weeks ago Monday. He is a letter carrier and special policeman of Tiverton. He was questioned by District Attorney Swift.

Q.—Where did you find part of the body? A.—On Bulgermarsh road, from one-fourth to half a mile from Bliss Corners, on the north side.

Q.—Describe the circumstances? A.—I carry the mail, and I was going along the road and stopped into the bushes for a time, when about twenty-five feet from the road I saw the remains.

Q.—Were they visible from the road? A.—Not to the casual observer, but when I came back with the officials to the spot I looked from the road and I found that I could just see them.

Q.—Describe what you saw? A.—First

NEW HAVEN R. R. VOTES TO RAISE CAPITAL STOCK

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 27. The New Haven road's directors was held to-day and all but three directors were present. President Mellen is the chair. J. Pierpont Morgan offered a resolution to increase the capital stock by $50,000,000 additional shares.

The stock is to be sold to shareholders and the holders of the city, one share and 6 per cent debentures at $125 the share.

A stockholder wanted Mr. Morgan's resolution amended limiting the new stock to $20,000,000 and in $10,000,000 lots, but he withdrew his amendment on request of the president.

Mr. Mellen after the meeting said that under the laws of Massachusetts the New Haven had sold by order of the Supreme Court all of its interest in the Worcester & Webster and Webster & Dudley Street Railways which come to it by inheritance from the Worcester & Connecticut Eastern through the Consolidated Railway.

"There is not a dollar in the line account which covers the 'third house'" he said. "There has been nothing of the sort on our books in the last three or four years and never will be again while I am president."

He said that the distribution of expenses was made according to the interstate Commerce Commission. There outstand about $30,000,000 in the 5% per cent. debenture convertible into stock at $150 between January 1, 1911, and January 1, 1916, and there are $28,585,000 in the 6 per cent. debenture convertible into stock at par after January 15, 1923.

President Mellen said that at no time were dividends more secure than now to holders of New Haven stocks.

"The new stock will be issued at once and be payable in one instalment. Dividends to no dividends to be paid until fully paid for."

BACHELOR CLUB DINNER.

The Bachelors' club of Dorchester, composed of thirty-five well-known bosses men, will hold a banquet at the Young's Hotel to-night. The constitution of the club provided that the members shall not marry until they are at least forty years of age. The officers of the club are: George A. Slessel, president; Francis E. Newcomb, secretary, and Arthur A. Allison, treasurer. The club when originated was composed of but seven members.

DR. YOUNG FALLS DEAD.

HAVERHILL, Oct. 27.—While responding to a sick call today Dr. Leyland J. Young, fifty-nine years old, dropped dead of heart failure as he was walking down Park street. He was formerly president of the Board of Aldermen and at one time served on the Board of Health.

$25,000,000 FOR CENTRAL EQUIPMENT

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Announcement was made this afternoon that the New York Central Railroad had placed orders for $25,000,000 worth of new equipment to be delivered during 1910. This equipment includes new passenger and freight cars, locomotives and steel rails. The new equipment is to be divided about equally between the divisions east and west of Buffalo.

At the office of Assistant General Manager Hustis of the Boston & Albany division of the New York Central in Boston, it was announced this afternoon that a substantial part of the new equipment ordered is to come to Massachusetts. Just how much the railroad officials cannot say, but the Boston & Albany division will be largely favored.

USED TO KISS ALL AROUND, SAYS PARSON

To show how extravagant his wife was the Rev. William A. Thurston, testifying to-day in his divorce suit against his wife, Stella M., before Judge Fessenden, declared that she allowed the children to make fudge and ice cream every Sunday when his salary was hardly in excess of $1,000 a year.

"And that was not her only extravagance," he testified. "She used cream instead of milk and bought the best cuts of meat that the markets could afford."

A surprise was sprung on Thurston at to-day session when Attorney Rowley announced that an amendment had been made to the case, charging Mrs. Thurston with a statutory offence and naming Grace I. Taylor, a former stenographer in the brokerage office of the former pastor, the time being February, 1905.

Mr. Thurston, who formerly was a minister in Jamaica Plain and more recently has been living at the Hotel Oxford, took the stand at the opening of court, and Attorney Rowley for Mrs. Thurston resumed his cross-examination.

"Called Me a Liar."

"Did she ever call you a hypocrite, as you said yesterday?" asked Mr. Rowley.

"Well, she called me a liar and a brute, and told me that she would have nothing more to do with church work. 'I'm done with it,' she said. This was after she threatened to kick me out of the pulpit."

"How often did you quarrel?"

"We quarrelled when I objected to her sister coming to us and running us into debt. She also called me a liar when I told her that her father had gone crazy and that her brother died in an insane asylum."

Other instances which he called cruelty were cited by Thurston. "After quarreling with me for over a month, I bought her a fur coat for $85; and that in my financial condition was cruelty. And when she made me move from Jamaica Plain to Gainsborough street, in the Back Bay, that was cruelty. I wanted to stay in Jamaica Plain."

"Didn't Like Her; Loved Her."

Q.—Did you love your wife and the family? A.—I did not like my wife, but I loved her. You can't like what people do sometimes, but you can't help loving them.

Q.—Is it true that your foster brother went to your house, found your wife sick in bed and kissed her? A.—Yes, I heard it.

Q.—You had seen your brother kiss your wife before? A.—Yes, but I told him not to after I suspected him.

Q.—You kiss your brother's wife, don't you? A.—Yes; it has been a habit to kiss all around, but after I suspected my brother I ruled it out.

The former clergyman's foster brother is named by him in the divorce action.

On further cross-examination Thurston said that Grace Taylor had been his stenographer for about twelve years and that he selected her on the recommendation of his wife.

Q.—Do you recall any occasion when your wife came to your office and found the door locked and you and Miss Taylor inside? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Did you ever give her a hundred dollars? A.—No, sir, I owed her a hundred dollars and paid it.

Mrs. Huntington Racing Home for Surgeon's Knife.

LONDON—Mrs. Collis P. Huntington is suffering from appendicitis and is going to New York to be operated upon. She sailed to-day on the Kronprinzessin Cecilie. Her condition, it is understood, is so serious that the operation will be performed immediately upon her arrival in America. Mrs. Huntington is said to have declared that she feels much more confidence in American surgeons than in those on this side.

Barries Are Not Reconciled.

LONDON—The report that J. M. Barrie, the playwright, and his wife are to effect a reconciliation is absolute rubbish. Mr. and Mrs. Barrie were divorced only a few days ago.

Neither of them will talk on the subject. On the best authority it is said there is not a word of truth in the rumor of their reconciliation.

Lucas Made da Vinci Bust.

LONDON—Albert Durer Lucas, son of the alleged maker of the da Vinci bust lately bought by a syndicate of Leopard da Vinci by Dr. Bode, curator of the Kaiser Friedrich Museum at Berlin, is living at Southampton. Nevertheless he is nearly eighty years old, he still earns a livelihood by art work. He said to-day: "Certainly not father made the bust."

Gladstone to Be a Baronet.

LONDON—Herbert Gladstone, son of the Grand Old Man of English politics, will accept the peerage which has been persistently refused. It is stated authoritatively that Herbert Gladstone has been selected for the post of first Governor-General of the Union of South Africa, and he will receive a barony before his appointment.

Disastrous Storm in England.

LONDON—The heavy rains that have been sweeping over England early in the sweeping away of a bridge near Roberts, Sussex, and the wreck of a freight train. The train plunged into the swollen stream and was completely covered, the engineer being drowned. Heavy damage has been done throughout the whole district.

King Victor Writes a Book.

ROME—The Tribuna announces that King Victor Emmanuel will publish a book shortly on the history of numismatics, which he has written. The King has been a coin collector for years and has already written a treatise on the subject, which was issued for private circulation among his friends.

GREEKS NEAR FISTIC BATTLE

A fist fight was narrowly averted to-day at the convention of the Pan-Hellenic Union, at the Greek Church in Winchester street.

Dr. George Katsanos and Ange Romeos were the two belligerents, the pair being separated with difficulty by the other forty-three delegates present, including the Greek Ambassador to the United States, Lambros Coromilas.

The difficulty arose when Dr. Katzanos questioned the right of Romeos to a seat in the convention. Romeos replied angrily and in the heat of the argument the words "educated fool" were used. Romeos grabbed the medical delegate by the lapel of the coat and made him for him, while everyone else in the convention hall grabbed the fighters and they were separated. Romeos retained his seat.

To-day is the final session, the feature of which has been the fanning down of the proposition of Romeos to make it compulsory for every Greek in the United States to become an American citizen.

FATHER WALSH MADE PASTOR

Archbishop O'Connell has appointed the Rev. Thomas A. Walsh, for the past nineteen years a curate at St. Patrick's Church, Roxbury, to be pastor of St. Mary's Church of Collinsville, a suburb of Lowell. Father Walsh is a brother of Lawyer Patrick D. Walsh, president of St. Patrick's Total Abstinence and Literary Society. As a priest he is loved and respected by thousands in the Roxbury section of the city, where he has labored so many years. His leaving, even for well-earned promotion, will cause keen regret, especially among the young men of the parish, in whose welfare and aims he always took an active interest.

Father Walsh was born in Amesbury and was ordained to the priesthood in 1886. His first service was in St. Vincent's Church, South Boston. In 1890 he was transferred to St. Patrick's, Roxbury, where he has been stationed since.

FRESH SUGAR TRUST ACTION

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The Department of Justice to-day took up the consideration of the Sugar Trust case in which United States Judge Holt of the Circuit Court yesterday dismissed the indictments against Gustave E. Kissel and Thomas B. Barnes because of the statute of limitations. Attorney-General Wickersham was studying the decision of Judge Holt, but it was announced that not till he had thoroughly digested it would the government's future line of action be outlined. It was believed here to-day that the Holt decision clears John E. Parsons and five other directors of the American Sugar Refining Company who were indicted in New York last July, charged with entering into a conspiracy to prevent the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company from doing business. It was charged by the government that Kissel was the agent of the Sugar Trust and arranged for a $1,250,000 loan to Adolph Segal of Philadelphia, the collateral being 26,000 shares, mostly of the stock of the Pennsylvania company. With this control the trust, it was alleged, had a new board of directors named for the Pennsylvania company and the new board voted to close the refinery.

SPED AUTO ON, GOT 6 MONTHS

Harry A. White, a University of Maine student and a resident of Lynn, was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction by Judge Albert Bosson in the Chelsea police court to-day for refusing to stop an auto after knocking down a pedestrian in Chelsea square, who gave his age as twenty-four years, appealed.

Dr. Howard E. Ames, chief of the medical staff of the United States Naval Hospital at Chelsea, testified that he was struck by the auto on the night of October 9 and that both White and Carl C. Jacobs, a Lynn attorney, who were in the machine, refused to stop when he signalled to them to do so. He got their number and traced the defendants.

YOUTH SENTENCED FOR LYNN THEFT

LYNN, Oct. 27.—Albert L. Vallquet, 18 years of age and giving his home as Montreal, was to-day sent to the Concord Reformatory by Judge Lummus. The youth pleaded guilty to the larceny of $100 worth of jewelry from the home of Mrs. Mary Moffugh, No. 11 Cherry street, this city. Young Vallquet was arrested in Worcester yesterday while he was trying to pawn the stolen jewelry.

FIND MISSING MAN IN CAVE WITH LOOT

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Harry Owens, once a well-to-do resident of Patchogue, L. I., who disappeared several months ago, and whose disappearance was followed by a series of bold thefts, was found to-day living in a cave north of Patchogue. The cave was filled with plunder, consisting of fur coats, jewelry and goods valued at $2,000. Owens presented a wierd appearance and could not talk rationally.

JUDGE INDICTED FOR TAKING BRIBE

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Magistrate Henry J. Furlong of the Gates Avenue Court, Brooklyn, was indicted by the county grand jurors to-day.

DAUGHTER ACCUSES FATHER AS SLAYER

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa., Oct. 27.—Unable longer to keep secret the fact that her mother was murdered, although three years with a similar fate if she did not hold her tongue, Mrs. John Kennerdine, living near here, to-day caused the arrest of her father, William Jones, whom she charges with the crime. When Mrs. Jones died an investigation was made, but a verdict of "death from unknown causes" was rendered with no suspicion pointing to the husband.

YANKEE REFUSES TO BE FLOATED

NEW BEDFORD, Oct. 27.—The U. S. cruiser Yankee refused to come out of dock to-day. The Atbokeka flotilla, comprising six torpedo boats and the cruiser all ready, but she did not move. Another attempt will be made to raise the Yankee to-morrow.

N. Y. BUDGET INCREASES.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—The tentative budget for the city for the ensuing year, it was announced at the City Hall to-day, is $157,049,000. This, with the sinking fund appropriation of $2,821,932 and statutory increases deducted, leaves a net increase over last year of about $1,000,000.

ABANDONMENT IS THE CLAIM BY MRS. ASTOR

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Abandonment, it is now said, is the specific charge made by Mrs. John Jacob Astor in her suit against her husband. Most of the evidence will be in the form of affidavits.

Mrs. Astor was in seclusion to-day at the home of her friend, Mrs. Benjamin Guinness, No. 8 Washington square. She has arranged a conference with her counsel, John H. Cadwalader, late this afternoon. Her near relatives and intimate friends have known for some time that she contemplated the suit. It is reported that several members of the Astor family are in sympathy with Mrs. Astor in her action.

Attorney Charles H. Young, the referee appointed in the suit, has been taking evidence for the past week.

Complete silence is being maintained by the lawyers in the case. Louis Cass Ledyard, counsel for Mr. Astor, declined to see reporters of the AMERICAN. John H. Cadwalader, representing Mrs. Astor, also refused to say a word as to the facts set up by Mrs. Astor in her petition. In fact, all who are familiar with the details of the action refuse to give any official information.

Society Still Shocked.

The marital differences of the Astors is the principal topic of conversation among the society leaders of New York. The late-staying members of the "four" at Newport read with interest the report of the suit published in the AMERICAN. Mrs. J. D. Barron Willing, a brother of Mrs. Astor, has arrived to visit her. It is said he will help care for his sister against Mr. Astor. Mr. Willing recently returned from Europe and had been at Newport.

Before leaving Newport for New York Mr. Willing said a representative of the AMERICAN that he had not heard from his sister since his return from Europe and was in no position to talk regarding the suit.

Spent Time Apart.

The news of Mrs. Astor's suit was not a complete surprise to those who have been watching the affairs of the Astors. It was known that Mrs. Astor for the last two years spent most of her time in Europe, while Colonel Astor remained in New York. Prior to sailing for Europe two years ago, Mrs. Astor visited Newport, and has not been there since.

Up to that time she had been considered one of the leading spirits in tennis at the Newport Casino and served on that committee with Harper Wallach and Miss Maude Wetmore. Even while abroad her name was continued on the committee list.

Last year Colonel Astor occasionally visited Newport to see his son Vincent, who then attended St. George's School in Middletown, just across the beaches from Newport.

HARK TO POTTER; HE SAYS: "MARRY"

CLINTON, Oct. 27.—Jeremiah Potter, a merchant here, advised young people to marry when the fiftieth anniversary of his own wedding was celebrated here. "I was when he was twenty and his bride was eighteen. I started with nothing," said Mr. Potter, "but I never regretted the step. If a couple are united in such spirit they will get along in the world and be happy."

FIREMEN IN PERIL DURING $30,000 BLAZE

One building was completely gutted and two others badly damaged during a fire in the three five-story brick buildings at Nos. 44, 46 and 48 Portland street, Nos. 1, 2 and 3 Sudbury square and Nos. 46 and 48 Sudbury street, West End, early to-day. Three alarms were sounded. The fire caused a damage that is estimated at above $30,000.

Several firemen narrowly escaped injury when a section of the third floor of No. 2 Sudbury square crashed down upon them. On the way to the fire Tower No. 1 skidded against the sidewalk and crashed through the plate glass window of the Curtis Safe and Desk Company at No. 98 Sudbury street. The crew of the tower were badly shaken up, although all escaped without serious injury. The burned buildings are located in the heart of the paint district, the section of the city that is most feared by the firemen, and the fire several times threatened to spread to the adjoining buildings. Several firms occupy the three buildings, and all suffered heavy damage.

The buildings at Nos. 44, 46 and 48 Portland street and Nos. 1, 2 and 3 Sudbury square are owned principally by the Potter Manufacturing Company, manufacturers of soda fountains. Other occupants are the Boyd Plating Company, and Hibbard & Smith, furniture manufacturers. The firms are the heaviest losers, as most of the fire was confined to their buildings. The buildings at Nos. 46 and 48 Sudbury street is occupied by L. F. Mitchell, copper and brass finishers; Boyd, sandblast and by the Gillette Novelty Company, and Campbell & Marble, decorators.

Started on Third Floor.

The fire started in one of the workshops of the Potter Manufacturing Company on the third floor in the rear of No. 2 Sudbury square. It spread rapidly through the building until it had reached every door, burning through the wooden barricade that separates that building from the buildings on the Portland street side and sweeping its way through to the front of these buildings.

The members of Engine Company 26 were on ladders on the Sudbury square side, trying to gain a footing on the second door of the building when a section of the third floor crashed through upon them. They were forced to jump to the windows to escape injury. Chief Mullen sprayed the men to be careful as the walls of the building were said to have been weakened by the fire and were in danger of collapse. After the force of the flames had been reduced by the tons of water poured into the building the firemen entered the building, although the dense smoke hung over them like a pall.

TOWN'S LOSS IS $120,000 IN FORGERIES

SOUTH FRAMINGHAM, Oct. 27.—That the liabilities of the town of Framingham on account of the town note forgeries committed by Treasurer John R. Lombard will not exceed $120,000 is the advice given the Selectmen by Walter Adams, town counsel. This amount is the borrowing limit of the town, as set by the town itself.

This advice was the source of relief to the Selectmen, who have been hearing legal opinions to the contrary.

To guard against further irregularities, the Selectmen have ordered a net set of locks and combinations for the vaults in which the books of the town officers and other records are kept. The town clerk was instructed to keep a complete record of the holders of keys to the town offices.

George A. Sweetser, counsel for Charles S. Cummings, the broker locked up in consequence of the Framingham forgeries, has made the following statement:

"I have been asked what became of the proceeds of any of the town of Framingham notes which have been the subject of discussion in connection with the arrest of Mr. Cummings and Mr. Lombard. At the present time I am not in a position to make any statement with reference to that, except that I can say Mr. Cummings is at the present time practically without resources.

"Mr. Cummings had nothing to do with any alleged forgeries upon any note, and in fact believed the signatures on every note of the town of Framingham negotiated by him to be genuine, and if any such signatures are forgeries, he himself has been completely deceived. At the proper time Mr. Cummings will disclose the entire connection with Mr. Lombard and with the negotiation of all papers of the town of Framingham, but there will be no hypothesis about it."

JUSTICE PECKHAM BURIED AT ALBANY

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 27.—The funeral of Associate Justice Rufus W. Peckham of the United States Supreme Court was held this afternoon. The body was brought from Altamont, Judge Peckham's country home, where he died, on a special train. It was met at the station by the pall-bearers and Justice Edward C. White of the Supreme Court. The services were at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, and then the body was taken to the cemetery. Governor Hughes and Mrs. Hughes, and former Senator David B. Hill were among those present. At St. Peter's the rector, Rev. A. M. Vinton, bishop of Western Massachusetts, and a cousin of Mrs. Peckham, assisted the Rev. W. W. Battershall.

JOHN M. READ IS HELD FOR PERJURY

FALL RIVER, Oct. 27.—John M. Read, who figured in a sensational trial here four years ago when he brought suit against Patrolman Benjamin W. Brown and was awarded $5,000, a verdict which was afterward set aside by the Supreme Court, was to-day held in $1,000 for the grand jury on the charge of perjury. Brown alleges that Read testified one thing at a hearing before the police commissioners while his testimony before the court was in direct contradiction.

SAYS CLIEST IS "BONEHEAD BARRY"

"This young man is the original Bonehead Barry," declared Representative Fred J. Sheeran, counsel for Andrew Flanigan of Roxbury, in court to-day, referring to his client. Brennan of the plea Flanigan was discharged on a charge of perjury. Flanigan made contradictory statements in a suit brought by Howard Conroe against the Boston Elevated, and Judge Brown ordered his arrest. Sheeran proceeded to showing that Flanigan had not wilfully committed perjury.

WOMEN MOB THE COURT ROOM AS HILL IS HALED IN SUIT CASE TRIAL

I saw a piece of a newspaper. Then I saw a portion of an extension bag. It was brown-gray in color.

Q.—What was in the bottom of the bag? A.—The bag was tipped and lay on its side. One end of a human thigh was in the case. The legs were cut off here. (The witness pointed to his knees.)

Q.—What else did you find? A.—An empty beer bottle. The newspaper was published at New Bedford.

Q.—What day of the week did you make the find? A.—It was on Monday. The date of the newspaper was the previous Sunday.

Q.—Was the newspaper wrapped about the limb, or was it in the suit case separate? A.—It was about 1-6 feet away from the suit case.

Q.—What did you do? A.—It gave me a great start at first, but I made careful observations without touching the remains or other articles. Then I returned to the Tiverton police.

Q.—What time was that? A.—About 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

Searched the Woods.

Q.—Did you do anything further? A.—Yes; I searched back with the police and others and showed them where it was. That was about 3 o'clock.

Q.—Were the same things there? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you do anything further? A.—I searched the woods about there.

Thomas F. Higgins cross-examined the witness. He brought out that the postman traveled twenty-three miles a day in covering his route. He traversed the Bulger marsh road every day, finishing at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

He said he didn't look at his watch at the exact time he found the telescope bag, but knew about what time it was. He said he immediately telephoned to the Tiverton police from the home of Martin Manchester. When the medical examiner arrived he didn't touch the extension bag or the flasks, and they were taken into the shed.

Tells of Finding Torso.

The witness said that there was a blood stain in the suit case and a stain on the ground immediately under the end of one of the limbs which hung out of the case. He said he made the discovery on October 11, and that a newspaper found nearby was dated October 10. He said the limbs seemed to be well preserved and that they were very white.

James T. Monroe was the next witness summoned by the government. He said that he had found the torso at 2 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, October 12. He found it uncovered in a little clearing about fifteen feet from the Burgessmarsh road and about 200 yards east of the Fish road. He said no path led to the clearing. His dog found the body and he followed him to it.

Following the testimony of Joseph Haywood, who found the two arms and part of one of the legs of the victim, Policeman Levi Grinnell, of Tiverton, was called to the stand.

"I found the cover of the extension parcels east of where the first results were discovered. I took charge of the cover. I saw the name, 'Frank L. Hill, Pleasant street,' on the cover. I turned the cover over to Medical Examiner Stimson."

Lawyer Higgins in behalf of Hill cross-examined the witness.

Q.—When you saw the remains afterward, had any preservative been used? A.—I can't say. I heard that something had been used.

Q.—What did you find on the cover besides what you have stated? A.—I found blood stains on the inside of the cover.

Q.—Where is the bag now? A.—I think it is in this building, but I don't know.

Demands Case Be Shown.

Q.—Would you recognize it if you were to see it again? A.—Yes.

Higgins—I now ask the district attorney to produce that bag.

District Attorney Swift—Well, you have asked me.

Higgins—Do you refuse?

Swift—I can't produce it because it is not here. I could tell you where it is if you wish.

Higgins did not press the matter. It is believed that Professor Whitney of Harvard has the bag for examination as to human blood stains. Colonel Hill said the bag was worn, as it had rotted that day.

Q.—Who first saw the name in the bag? A.—It was not in the bag—it was on the cover, written with an indelible pencil.

Q.—You write on this piece of paper just what you saw on the cover of the bag?

Swift: "Why, you don't think that he can imitate the writing, do you?"

Higgins: "Well, I want him to do the best he can. I want to see just what he saw, as you won't produce the bag."

Called on to Write.

A pen and piece of paper were handed to Grinnell and he began to write. Higgins continued to ask him questions:

Q.—Anything else but the name on the cover? A.—Yes, "Pall River, Mass."

Q.—Quite sure of that? A.—Yes, sure, and I think, "Pleasant street."

By this time Grinnell had finished the writing and handed the result to Higgins. The lawyer and the District Attorney looked at the writing, and it was agreed to mark it in the evidence that the stenographer was taking down.

Q.—Where was the writing? A.—It is in the left hand corner. It was not written very plainly, but I did not need a glass to see it.

Q.—Had there been any attempt at erasure? A.—I did not see any.

John W. Moran, a Boston newspaper man, who was with Grinnell when the cover of the bag was found, corroborated the policeman as to the discovery. He said that he saw no blood on the cover, but it might have been there.

THREE SLAIN IN FAMILY FEUD

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 27.—James McMahon has confessed that he murdered his sisters, Miss Rose McMahon and Mrs. Alonza Van Royen, and the latter's husband, Alonzo Van Royen, on a farm near Kansas City, Kan.

A long-standing family quarrel caused the tragedy. McMahon killed Van Royen in a wood and later went to the Van Royen home and shot his sisters.

Fearing mob violence by a throng that gathered about the county jail after the confession became known, the sheriff rushed the murderer and his brother, Patrick McMahon, and Patrick Lonnh, a farm hand, who are held as witnesses, to the penitentiary at Lansing to-night in automobiles. The cries of the mob were heard within the jail, and the prisoners begged to be taken to a place of safety. James McMahon took sole responsibility for the crime.

INSANE MOTHER FIGHTS 3 POLICE

Mrs. Nora Madden of No. 2 Greenmont street, Dorchester, is locked up in the Tombs awaiting adjudication to some insane hospital. Three policemen were necessary to capture Mrs. Madden. Neighbors complained last night that the woman was insane and liable to murder her two children, James, five years old, and Mary, age seven. The officers found her with a child under each arm in the front room of her home. She fought the officers desperately, but the finally carried her off to the police station.

AUTOIST SAYS GIRL WAS NOT CAR'S VICTIM

The Cambridge police to-day are investigating an auto accident on Third street, East Cambridge, in which, it is charged, after little four-year-old Annie Bradley of No. 7 Conlon court had been run over by a big touring car, a member of the party picked her up from the street, placed the unconscious child on the curbstone, and then fled in the auto. There were two men and two women in the auto. The number was 2960 Massachusetts registry.

George A. Horne of No. 113 High street, Lawrence, owner of the machine, admitted to an AMERICAN reporter to-day that he was in the car and was concerned in the Cambridge affair. He denies, however, having run over the child or leaving her as the Cambridge police claim.

"We were driving along Third street. We shut off our power and missed the child by a good margin. The little girl fell in the street, but was not touched by our machine. When one of our party picked her up and put her on the sidewalk she ran away crying. There were three witnesses on the street at the time and the child's own father knows that we did not strike her."

The Cambridge police tell a different story. According to them, little Annie, her five-year-old sister and another little girl were on their way home when the child was struck by the auto and thrown to the ground. Her head was severely bruised and her lips, nose and forehead badly cut.

GHOST DRIVES LYNN WOMAN OUT OF HOME

Mrs. Margaret Boyle who, with her two children, has lived in a tenement on Leighton street court, Lynn, for the last year, says she is forced to find another home because of the nightly visits of ghosts who haunt her house and make the long night hours torture for herself and two children.

She declares that the ghost has made repeated visits to her home and announced its presence by weird knockings on the floors and windows and that several times she has been nearly stricken with fainting spells as she beheld the strange specter outside her bedroom window.

Neighbors of Mrs. Boyle say they have seen a ghost like forms standing near the Boyle home late nights and have distinctly heard the rattle of pans.

A vigilance committee, instigated by Jacob Edgerman, the owner of the house, has stood watch this week, but the ghost has failed to put in the usual appearance. Mrs. Boyle, however, refuses to remain in the house and says she will find another tenement.

A few nights ago Mrs. Boyle was awakened by a loud knocking on her back door. She found no one there when she opened the door. A few seconds later there came a knocking at the front door of the house. Peering through the closed blinds Mrs. Boyle says she saw a white form moving slowly around the corner of the house, headed for the back door. At first she thought it was someone playing a joke on her.

SCORES DEAD IN CLOUDBURST

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 27.—It is feared that scores have lost their lives in the flooded Tobasco district. Reports received here to-day tell of immense property loss from the cloudburst, the inundation of towns and the destruction of thousands of houses.

First estimates of the damage were too low, according to to-day's news. A large stretch of country from the Mezalpa River to the Usumacinta is desolated. Along the Mezalpa River a dozen cities are under water. Aid is asked for the sufferers.

SIMPLE REMEDY FOR KIDNEYS

A Simple Mixture of Well-Known Ingredients for Weak or Inactive Kidneys or Bladder, Said to Be the Best That Can Be Had.

Mix smeltol comes fluid extract Buchu, one-half ounce Moxo compound and six ounces good rose gin." Take one to two teaspoonfuls three times a day, after eating. This simple treatment, taken in time and according to directions, is the best remedy obtainable for symptoms of kidney and bladder trouble, such as pains in the back, Pelvic, scanty or highly colored urination, soreness in the groin or hip, rheumatic pains in the joints, dizziness, etc. All the above ingredients can be bought separately and mixed at home, or any good druggist can put up the prescription. This prescription cleanses clogged up or inactive kidneys and restores them to their natural function of filtering and sifting impure waste matter and uric acid from the blood.

MASKED BALL OPENS CHANCE FOR BURGLARS

MALDEN, Oct. 27.—Taking advantage of the fact that a masquerade ball was being held in the Auditorium building, two burglars disguised themselves as fairgoers and obtained entrance to the hall.

After taking part in the festivities for a while they made their exit from the building and into the court yard by means of an unlighted flight of stairs in the rear.

In the courtyard they found a ladder and carried it to a distant end of the building occupied by dentists, physicians, manicurists and others. Raising the ladder to the first floor the men climbed up and opened a window leading into the deserted corridor.

Just then the clerks employed in the postoffice, which is on the street floor, noticed the ladder and became suspicious. One of them notified George D. Campbell, manager of the building, and he sent Patrolman William Barrett to investigate.

The burglars saw the officer at the same moment that he saw them and at once made a hasty retreat down the stairs.

Through the scrambling throngs of pedestrians the strangely clad men dashed, tugging right and left with their arms as they plunged ahead.

They were almost out of sight when the policeman came from the building in pursuit. The police think the burglars are Malden men.

LYNN WOMAN WHO FIGURES IN $5,000 LOST LOVE SUIT

MRS. IDA HOWARTH

BEGIN FIRST MONO RAILROAD HERE

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Construction work on the City Island mono railroad, the first of its kind in America, began to-day. The line will connect the Harlem River branch of the New York, New Haven & Hartford at Barstow station with City Island. The motive power is electricity.

SHOE WORKER VALUES WIFE'S LOVE AT $5,000

Charging that his pretty wife's affections have been alienated, James Howarth, a shoe worker of Lynn, has brought suit for $5,000 against Fred S. Langdon, a prominent tea merchant, also of Lynn, in the Essex County Courthouse in Salem.

An attachment was placed on a bank account for $5,000 which Langdon had in one of the Lynn banks, and Deputy Sheriff Frank E. Wells was placed in charge of Langdon's store, which is also attached.

Pretty Mrs. Howarth, a tall, willowy brunette with flashing black eyes and raven hair, is now employed by Langdon in the capacity of confidential clerk.

In May, 1908, Langdon became a boarder at the home of the Howarths, No. 204 Essex street, this city. Last April Howarth told Langdon that he would have to leave and he objected on the ground that Langdon was taking Mrs. Howarth out riding and otherwise devoting himself to her entertainment.

According to Howarth, Mrs. Howarth at once took sides with their boarder and defended him against her husband's charges. Then, Howarth says, his wife left him when he refused to allow Langdon to longer remain in their home.

Soon afterward, Howarth broke up housekeeping and, with his two little boys, James, aged five, and Earl, aged twenty months, went to live with his parents at No. 116 Lewis street, this city.

Mrs. Howarth is now living at a local lodging house and it is said that Langdon is also a lodger at the same house.

T. P. O'CONNOR TALKS TO-NIGHT AT HARVARD

On the invitation of President Lowell of Harvard University, the Hon. T. P. O'Connor, M. P., will this evening address the students in Harvard Union, Cambridge. His subject will be "The New Ireland."

Mr. O'Connor, Edward O'Meagher Condon and John O'Callaghan, spoke at a large home rule meeting in Lowell Tuesday evening, at which a generous sum was raised for the cause.

Mr. O'Connor is remaining in Lowell today. He is the guest of the Rev. Fr. O'Brien, one of the Lowell leaders of the United Irish League, and the members of the Washington Club.

The Irish representative will go to New York to-morrow and on Friday will address a meeting in Orange, N. J. Saturday morning he will start for Columbus, O., where he speaks on Sunday night. His next meeting will be on Tuesday evening in Chicago, when the Irish societies and friends of home rule are preparing an immense reception in honor of their distinguished visitor. Other meetings arranged for Mr. O'Connor in the next two weeks are in Toledo, O., St. Louis, Philadelphia, New York and Washington.

HOW WE GROW OLD; SEE T. P. O'CONNOR THIRTY YEARS AGO

These two pictures of T. P. O'Connor show the difference thirty years make in a man's appearance. The top picture is from a photograph taken twenty-nine years ago, just before he came to America for the first time. The other picture shows the eminent Irish patriot and editor at sixty years, as he looks in Boston to-day. By the way, Mr. O'Connor does NOT like to be called "Tay Pay." The appellation, he explains, was coined by his opponents, and somehow he just can't reconcile it as the term of affection such as is so frequently used in the United States.

STEEL JURORS IN PROTEST AT TRIAL DELAYS

Three members of the jury which is to decide the guilt or innocence of the thirty-two defendants in the so-called steel cases, caused the sensation of the trial to-day by protesting against what they believed to be the unnecessary delay in the trial.

The protest followed the announcement by Judge Harris that he would adjourn court Friday until the following Wednesday on account of the intervening Tuesday being election day. Arthur B. Gilpatrick was the first of the jurors to protest. He arose in his seat and addressed Judge Harris.

"If it please Your Honor," said the juryman, "I think that many of us are sacrificing a good deal of time to the court as it is without wasting any more. Every day that I sit here I am losing money. I think we ought to sit on this case Monday. The case is progressing slowly enough. It has taken six weeks already. I hope that Your Honor will hasten matters as much as is possible."

John H. Gibbard, another member of the jury also protested against the postponement. He began to fear that he is losing money daily. A third juror spoke in the same vein.

Judge Harris consulted with Clerk Manning. It was announced that while the law provided that jurors should be paid only for the days they sat, yet Judge Harris thought some arrangement could be made by which the men could be paid for Monday.

N. Gertrude Damon, the stenographer for the New England Structural Company, was the first witness to-day. She was questioned in regard to the cards she received from and sent to the Information Bureau. She said that she marked and mailed them at the direction of the secretary of the Company, Charles N. Flitts.

Mr. Flitts followed Mis Damon. This is the eleventa day that he has been on the stand. He identified the signature on several bids made by his company and which were produced in evidence. They were bids for structural work and were loaned to the District Attorney by President Mellon of the New Haven railroad, to whom they were submitted.

MME. NAZIMOVA SEEN IN NEW PLAY

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 27.—Mme. Nazimova began her fourth season under the direction of the Shuberts at Harmanus Bleecker Hall here, presenting a new play of contemporary life entitled "The Passion Flower," by Brandon Tynan. The story chiefly centres around Mrs. Vivien Rodman, wife of John Rodman, president of the People's Bank. Vivien, being a frivolous woman, aspires for social honors at any cost, and her ambitions in this direction finally bring about the financial ruin of her husband. The author tells a story of social life in New York.

BIG DEMAND FOR NEW OPERA TICKETS

A heavy demand has followed the announcement of the additional performances to be given on Thursday evenings at the Boston Opera House, thus providing fifteen extra performances during the season for the large public which has not been able to compete with the season subscribers. To-day the box office at the Opera House was busy, telegrams came in numbers and letters from the city and environs have commenced to arrive.

HUNTER SHOT IN BOTH KNEES

SWAN'S ISLAND, Me., Oct. 27.—Raphia Smith, Leslie Stinson and Charles Burns of Swan's island were gunning for birds on Black Rock, when Leslie Stinson slipped and his gun was discharged, shooting Raphia Smith in the knees.

Six of the shot went trough one knee and five through the other. He walked from the rocky ledge to his boat and they took him home. After landing he walked a short distance to the house, almost fainting when he reached there.

SEEKS FATHER AFTER 33 YEARS' ABSENCE

Thomas Hayes, who left his home in Melrose thirty-three years ago, has returned to search for some trace of his father, Patrick Hayes, from whom he had not heard for several years. Mr. Hayes is a prosperous resident of Stratford, Ct. The son is conferring with some of the old-time residents in his efforts to learn of his father.

CONSULS IN CONFLICT.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 27.—Following the appointment of Richard Sussman, president of the Southern Commercial Company, as consul general of the Nicaraguan provisional government, Consul General Ariscuil, representing the Zelaya government, announced to-day that he would institute legal proceedings to prevent Sussman from clearing vessels to Nicaraguan Atlantic ports which have been declared closed by Zelaya.

FLORIDA'S WICKED INDIAN REFORMS

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 27.—Christianity has accomplished what the government failed to do in a twenty-five years of bloody struggling and Chief Tiger Tail, the wealthiest Florida Seminole, has capitulated. He will lead the last of the Everglade Indians to the Oklahoma reservation selected for them by Uncle Sam. A band of Seminoles from Oklahoma converted Tiger Tail at Titusville and to-day he announced his willingness to agree for the sake of his new faith to the government demand. The exodus is planned to take place in the Spring.

GENERAL HOWARD OF WAR FAME DEAD

BURLINGTON, Vt., Oct. 27.—General Oliver O. Howard, last of the Union commanders of the Civil War, is dead at his home in this city. He was seventy-nine years old.

Last week General Howard was in Omaha addressing the lecture, "Abraham Lincoln." His last public appearance was at London on Sunday night.

He was attacked by heart disease while sitting in a chair and was dead when a physician reached the house.

Bourrillon will be Mr. Russell's leading tenor for the French repertory, and will sing Faust, Romeo, Carmen, Lakme and Manon.

MEDICAL DIRECTOR OF NAVY IS DEAD

EDGARTOWN, Oct. 27.—Medical Director Benjamin Harrison Kidder, U. S. N., retired, died at his Summer home here last night. He was retired from the service in January, 1908, with the rank of rear admiral, and had made his home here in Malden. In 1895 he attained the rank of medical director. He was a native of Massachusetts. He entered the navy in 1861.

ITCHED A YEAR; CURED IN A WEEK

Hands Cracked Open, Bled, Burned and Ached—Could Not Sleep nor Even Dress Himself—Professional Treatment Failed to Help Him.

MAN OF 70 OWES SKIN COMFORT TO CUTICURA

"I am a man seventy years old. My hands were very sore and cracked open on the insides for over a year with large sores. They would crack open and bleed, itch, burn and ache so that I could not sleep and could do but little work. They were so bad that I could not dress myself in the morning. They would bleed and the blood dropped on the floor. I called on two doctors, but they did me no good. I could get nothing to do me any good till I got the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. About a year ago my daughter got a cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment and in one week from the time I began to use them my hands were all healed up and they have not been a mite sore since. I would not be without the Cuticura Remedies.

They also cured a bad sore on the hand of one of my neighbor's children, and they think very highly of the Cuticura Remedies. John W. Hasty, So. Effingham, N. H., Mar. 5 and Apr. 11, '09."

For Baby's Skin

The purest, sweetest and most economical method of preserving, purifying and beautifying baby's delicate skin, scalp and hair is the constant use of Cuticura Soap, assisted, when necessary, by gentle applications of Cuticura Ointment. IN THE GRIP OF THE BOSS

NO more sinister figure has risen in these United States, this Republic of our Fathers, than the BOSS. If the story that history tells of the great Republics of the past be ever told of our own loved land, their rise, their glory and their FALL, coupled with it will be this arch-assassin of your liberties, Mr. Voter, the American political boss. It matters not whether it be the former dive-keeper who rules Tammany Hall, the thugs who plunder Philadelphia, the plunderers of Pittsburg, the road agents who, as overlords of the citizens of Chicago, have made that a civic cancer; or your own sleek, courteous, cultured master of this old Massachusetts Commonwealth, Henry Cabot Lodge.

Boss Lodge says the tariff isn't an issue. That you mustn't discuss the tariff. The Trusts say it is settled, for they have HIS word for it. BUT YOU CAN UNSETTLE IT if you prefer the welfare of your family to a party label! If you want to be able to provide the comforts your home is entitled to you will tell Boss Lodge that you will no longer stand these high prices which take the food from your family, the clothing from their backs in order that his friends, the Trusts, may add to their millions. Rebuke Boss Lodge, the responsible author of this higher cost of living, by voting against the ticket he picked out, and voting for the men who are fighting for a lower cost of living, that you and your wife and children may not have to go without the comforts and necessities that are honestly due them.

Have you forgotten how, as by ukase from the Great White Czar himself, Herbert C. Parsons of Greenfield was retired to private life by Boss Lodge? Why? He dared to stand like a MAN and vote against the BOSS when in brazen effrontery he humiliated Massachusetts by seeking entrance to the United States Senate.

Do you recall how the political axe fell when Senator James F. Shaw dared to stand, as was his sovereign right, for DIRECT NOMINATIONS and was defeated for the Presidency of the Senate by the orders of the tax-dodger from Nahant?

John L. Bates declined to kowtow before this great Massachusetts JOSS and he went down to defeat. When John N. Cole aspired to the Lieutenant-Governorship, he found Boss Lodge barring his path. See how he and his character assassins are treating ex-Governor Guild!

Note the hostility of the Boss to men like Eugene N. Foss. No matter what a man's character be, what his achievements, if he declines to abase himself, he is not useful to this Boss.

With almost royal condescension the Sultan of the Republican Machine deigned to indicate his desire that Draper should be Governor. You accepted him last year. And Frothingham? Have you not had enough—Draper and Frothingham?

The lash of the overseer and master, this Simon Legree who rules you, made twenty-two Republican Representatives reverse and twelve others absent themselves on DIRECT NOMINATIONS, which meant liberty to you and political death to this atrocious pervert of liberty—Boss Lodge. Are you interested in all this, Mr. Voter?

What a farce is your "free" government! A Boss names your rulers, not alone of to-day, but to-morrow and five years hence, U. S. Senators, Governors and Lieutenant-Governors, whom he hopes to make Governors. Is this democracy? Is this government by the people? You know it is not. Then ACT!

Do you not know that before you solve some of the other problems and restore American government of the people, for the people and by the people, you must first crush the BOSS.

Tariff reduction, Canadian reciprocity, the Income Tax, all were vetoed yesterday and to-day and will be to-morrow and while this arrogant BOSS rules over you. MEN OF MASSACHUSETTS, THIS IS THE TIME TO ACT! HONOR THY FATHERS AND THY MOTHERS, THE MEN AND WOMEN WHO DIED AND SACRIFICED to make you free. You can do it by crushing the BOSS, by annihilating the last vestige of his domination, and the way is to Vote for James H. Vahey for Governor.

Vote for Eugene N. Foss for Lieutenant-Governor.

Frederick J. Macleod, 110 Oxford St., Cambridge.

BACKACHE GOES AND KIDNEYS ACT FINE AFTER TAKING A FEW DOSES.

No man or woman here whose kidneys are out-of-order, or who suffers from backache or bladder misery, can afford to leave Pape's Diuretic untried.

After taking several doses, all pains in the back, sides or loins, rheumatic twinges, nervousness, headache, sleeplessness, inflamed or swollen eyelids, dizziness, tired or worn-out feeling and other symptoms of clogged, sluggish kidneys simply vanish.

Uncontrollable urination (especially at night), smarting, discolored water and all bladder misery ends.

The moment you suspect the slightest kidney or bladder disorder, or feel rheumatism pains, don't continue to be miserable or worried, but get a fifty-cent treatment of Pape's Diuretic from your druggist and start taking as directed, with the knowledge that there is no other medicine, at any price, made anywhere else in the world, which is so harmless or will effect so thorough and prompt a cure.

This unusual preparation goes direct to the cause of trouble, distributing its cleansing, healing and vitalizing influence directly upon the organs and glands affected and completes the cure before you realize it.

A few days' treatment of Pape's Diuretic means clean, healthy, active kidneys, bladder and urinary organs—and you feel fine.

Your physician, pharmacist, banker or any mercantile agency will tell you that Pape, Thompson & Pape, of Cincinnati, is a large and responsible medicine concern, thoroughly worthy of your confidence.

Accept only Pape's Diuretic—fifty-cent treatment—from any drug store —anywhere in the world.

NO VENGEANCE ON COREA FOR ITO'S DEATH

TOKIO, Oct. 27.—In the course of its official announcement of the death of Prince Ito the foreign office to-day replied to the demands of several newspapers for the immediate annexation of Corea with the statement that Japan would not take vengeance upon Corea for Ito's death, but rather would continue the conciliatory policies he had inaugurated in the "Hermit Kingdom."

The logical successor to Ito in the councils of the Mikado is Prince Yamagata, long the chief opponent of Ito in matters of the military party. While Ito was regarded as the friend of the United States, Yamagata is not regarded as looking with favor on America. Japan's policy not only toward Corea but toward this country is expected to undergo an important change.

Prince Ito's body will reach Japan on November 2, and two days later the state funeral will be held. Prince Ito's rank has been advanced to the first grade, a posthumous honor.

Royal Honors in Death.

The body of Prince Ito will be honored in Japan with almost royal rites and mourning ceremonies more impressive than have ever marked the funeral of any man below the rank of Mikado. The two, one of the finest ships of the Japanese navy, will bring the body from Manchuria to Yokohama.

Messages of condolence from many nations, including the United States, arrived to-day.

The Mikado is grief stricken. For years Prince Ito had been closer to Japan's ruler than any other adviser.

"Brother of the Emperor."

Ito was known as the "elder brother of the Emperor" and between the two cordial personal relations such as seldom mark the relations of rulers and their aids were always apparent.

A report was received to-day that Ito's assassin had newly received an order from him, but that his companions were still held. The three companions of the Prince who were also injured when he was shot at the Harbin railroad station, M. Mori, the Prince's private secretary; Japanese Consul General Kawakami and M. Tanaka, head of the South Manchurian Railroad, were to-day in a serious condition, having been more badly hurt than was at first believed. The physicians attending them, however, give out hopes of their recovery.

The extraordinary Council of the Ministry, announced by the Emperor, met immediately upon receipt of the news of Prince Ito's decease, was in session for several hours.

All Japan to-day put on mourning for the Prince. In every city and village honors were paid to him and public business was dropped wherever possible. Tokio and the other important cities as well are draped with mourning colors.

SHREWD DIPLOMACY BY CHINA IN WAKE OF ASSASSINATION

LONDON, Oct. 27.—China has seized the opportunity presented by the assassination of Prince Ito to one of the shrewdest diplomatic moves ever made in the diplomatic chess boards, Pekin insists that the Chinese government is entirely freed from responsibility for the death of Ito because she has been sovereign of police power in the Manchurian railroad zone according to discoveries received here to-day.

This disclaimer is regarded as of tremendous significance. The Chinese government, with consummate deftness, has turned to disadvantage Ito's assassination that has the force of an appeal to the capitals of the world by showing that she is unable to prevent so important a personage as Ito's assassination in her own territory. China lost control of the railroad zone after the Boxer uprising, when Russia took control. She declared that such a move was imperatively necessary to Russian administration. Japan took the jurisdiction and to-day China believes that without authority in one of the most important stretches of territory in all her vast empire. It is believed here that China's disclaimer in the Ito case will result in renewed activity in the far Eastern problem in the foreign office of every government that has an interest in China. Even if such is not the result China has at any rate put Japan on the defensive and strengthened her own case.

KILLING OF ITO WAS A POLITICAL MOVE, SAYS SON

ROME, Oct. 27.—The assassination of Prince Ito of Japan at Harbin was a political move, according to the dead statesman's son, Hirobumi, who to-day discussed the affair at length. He declared that the murder of his father was the work of members of a Corean party, which opposes control in Corea and wishes to see Russia or America become the dominant country on the peninsular. The Japanese attitude toward Korea will not be affected by Prince Ito's death, according to his son.

ELIOT HEADS BIG PLAN FOR CONSERVATION

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Nation-wide in its scope and backed with the enthusiastic indorsement of President Taft, a movement was launched today for concerted action in preserving the natural resources of the United States. Executive committee of the association, with general offices here and in Washington, will carry on the proposed vigorous campaign under the leadership of Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard University.

This association will be an active, militant organization, with the general object of securing practical application through legislative and administrative measures of the states and in the field of conservation of the conservation principles adopted by the governors of the United States at the conference with President Roosevelt, at the White House in May, 1908.

The association is the outcome of a plan on which many of national prominence have been at work with ex-President Eliot for many months. General offices were opened in the Fifth avenue building in this city to-day, where it was announced that the association already has its organization well under way, and that applications for membership were pouring in from all parts of the country. Dr. Eliot is personally directing the work of the association.

"I am glad to hear that the National Conservation Association has been formed under such a distinguished and capable leader," says ex-President Roosevelt, when made public to-day, "and with a member ship open to every American citizen. Big people cannot do a more useful thing for themselves and for posterity than to give their full support to the great business that are involved."

TO DEDICATE $75,000 CLUB

LYNN, Oct. 27.—The new $75,000 club house which is to be the headquarters for the 1,000 or more Lynn society and club women will be dedicated to-morrow night and the club rules which govern the membership open their bazaar, which is to continue until Saturday night. The clubhouse is on Chatham and Broad streets.

Mrs. Lydia M. Houghton is the president of the Lynn Women's Clubhouse Corporation. As such she is the official head in charge of all of the dedicatory exercises and the bazaar. Mrs. Georgiana Bacon of Worcester, president of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs, is the principal guest to-night and the principal speaker.

The women of Lynn have been working for five years to make this club house a reality. The cornerstone of the building was laid on April 22d of this year. It is a handsome three-story building and is the work of a committee of which Miss Josephine Wright Chapman, formerly of Lynn, but now of New York, was chairman.

The membership of the club home consists of the Lynn Women's Club, Mrs. Mary I. Sheldon, president; the 1884 Club, Hannah N. Newhall, president; The North Shore Club, Mrs. Ellen S. Collins, president; the Outlook Club, Miss Sophie Child, president, and the Arabian Club, Mrs. Minnie K. Gardner, president. Former Mayor Charles Neal Burrell is counsel for the Clubhouse corporation. He is to be one of the speakers to-night.

CHALMERS TO SPEAK AT BIG BANQUET

So many applications have been received for the Chamber of Commerce dinner at the Hotel Somerset to-morrow night that the committee finds the task of providing accommodations difficult. Two extra seats have been assigned already. Besides Henry B. Selfridge, owner of London's most successful American department store, Hugh Chalmers of Detroit will speak. Mr. Chalmers, who is president of the Chalmers-Detroit Motor Company, a year ago, at the age of thirty-four, was drawing $72,000 a year as the manager of a $2,000,000 corporation in Ohio.

You see the AMERICAN everywhere—in the homes, clubs, restaurants, hotels, cars and boats.

HARVARD MODELS AT 1915 EXHIBIT

Harvard University will make a comprehensive exhibit at the 1915 Boston Exposition that opens in the old Art Museum Monday. The exhibit will include a model of one of the new medical school buildings, 8x4 feet in size, and maps of Petersham Forest and the university grounds as a whole. Various appropriate pictures, placards and maps will be displayed on the walls at the exhibition booth.

FIRST FLYING MACHINE TRIP FOR A WOMAN

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Oct. 27.—For the first time in this country a woman ascended in a flying machine flying machine here to-day. Mrs. R. H. Van Deman, wife of an army officer, and a friend of the Wrights, Miss Ellis, was taken up for a four minute trip by Wilbur Wright in person.

The flight came as a complete surprise to everyone except Mr. Wright and the officers who had been told of the secret. The flight began at 8.13 o'clock after one of the aviators had been sent to Mrs. Van Deaman, accompanied by her husband reached the field early. She wore a long gray cloak, a black silk dress and a black hat.

After she and Miss Ellis had been seated in the machine Lieutenant Lahm and Mr. Wright tied her securely with a piece of rope. She thought to have a married man to do this, she said.

Mr. Wright made two circles of the field with his machine and his passenger was initiated into the mysteries of the machine's operations.

When the machine came to the ground Mrs. Van Deaman's husband walked up to Mr. Wright and said: "I certainly wish to thank you, Mr. Wright, because both of us will have a powerful bond."

"Oh, dear," said Mrs. Van Deaman, "the flight was simply grand."

Then the officers and Mr. Wright all smiling, took her away from the newspaper men who were trying to obtain an interview with her. Mr. Wright has not professed to take up many notable men and also according to common report, denied a request from Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth for a ri' ride trip.

JUDGE SCORES CUSTOMS MEN

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—As severe an arraignment as has ever been made from a United States bench against the tactics of officials of the government in the prosecution of a case was made to-day by Judge Holt in the United States Circuit Court when he instructed the jury before him to bring in a verdict of not guilty against Antonio Musica, the importer, charged with the conspiracy to defraud the government of customs duties.

"Before disposing of this case," said Judge Holt, "I would like to say something about the three witnesses for the government against Philip Musica. These witnesses employed by the Government have been promised immunity and have been retained in their places in the service. I realize the necessity of making concessions in the prosecution of criminal cases, but I have never heard of the Government retaining in the service such people, once self-confessed law breakers.

"This is to be strongly condemned and it is to the discredit of the Government that honest men be not elected should be compelled to continue at their tasks with men who have confessed such crimes. Such tactics are little short of disreputable."

YOUNG PLAYERS HELP OLD ONES

William Collier, with his company in "The Patriot," in a special matinee in the Hollis Street Theatre added a substantial sum to the Actors' Fund, a most worthy institution that sees to it that sick and needy actors are not forgotten. Another $150 was there. Lawrence D'Orsay sat in the same box with her, Annie T. Flower and a large number of his "Havana" company sat in front seats. Clifton Crawford had a big representation of his "Three Twins" aggregation and Thomas A. Wise, Douglas Fairbanks and Thomas A. Wise, of the gentlemen from Mississippi, headed a delegation of their supporters. William Rock and Maude Fulton, with members of the "Lonely Shop" company were among the spectators. Harry Conor, Zelda Sears and Will McAllister with a force from "The Blue Mouse" company also delighted figures in the house. Every attraction playing now in Boston was well represented.

ROOSEVELT AT LONDIANI

LONDIANI, British East Africa, Oct. 27.—Colonel Roosevelt, Kermit, Edmond Heller, J. A. Loring and Leslie Tarlton and Cunningham came here from Naivobi expecting to meet Carl E. Akeley, who is gathering specimens. However, Akeley did not arrive, and the party, with the exception of Cunningham, proceeded to Eldama ravine.

THIRD WOMAN SAYS SLAYER IS HUSBAND

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—A third wife today claimed Otto Mueller, alias Frederick Gebhardt, the confessed slayer of Anna Luther, as her husband. She is Amelia Roseman, employed as a family named Lawrence in Brooklyn. The woman positively identified at the inquest in Jersey City, when the slayer told the story of his crime.

"I am positive that Gebhardt is my husband," said the woman to-day.

"I married me under the name of Otto Mueller, fourteen years ago in Bremen. I am a German and so is he, but we were both living in Canada at the time we were married. Gebhardt brought him a fair dowry, which he did not succeed in getting until 1905, when I received me and came to America.

The young woman then declared that she would take her brother to help so that there would be no obstacle in her identification.

A fact in the case which would seem to bear out the girl's story is that Gebhardt in his confessions to the police told of a request stated that he had come to the United States in 1905, the year that she says he deserted her.

Another woman was brought into the case to-day. The police in investigating Gebhardt's past in Astoria learned there is a young woman who had been living in his company had mysteriously disappeared. The police are searching for her and a woman companion.

Gebhardt's keen nerve that stood by him during the time he was put through the third degree by the police, deserted him with him while he confessed, and again while he repeated the confession on the stand. He deserted him entirely when his wife and daughter their two children to his cell after the inquest.

The man clutched at the bars when he saw them coming down the corridor, and when the children were within his grasp he fell to his knees and sobbed them to him as he could from the steel-latticed cell.

"My boys, my boys," he moaned with the tears streaming down his cheeks. "I must live to see them grow up. They must not kill me while my children are alive. They must give me my life for my confession."

MILLION FOR TRADE SCHOOL FOR WOMEN

A trade school for young women endowed with $1,000,000, will soon be available to young women residents in Boston, as provided in the will of the late Frank B. Cotton of Brookline. An inventory of Mr. Cotton's estate shows an aggregate of $742,739.72. This is so invested that it soon will increase to a million dollars in value. Upon the death of beneficiaries named in the will, the estate is to be devoted to the establishment and maintenance of the school.

The benefits of the school will be open to all young women, without regard to religious or political belief, residents of Boston are to be given the preference in the event of applications exceeding its facilities. Instruction will be in sewing, housekeeping and other occupations by which women may earn their living independently.

Mr. Cotton made a study of the different lines which beset women wage earners in cities, and determined to devote his estate to making life easier for them. Most of the estate consists of land in Texas which is rapidly increasing in value.

LADY COOK SUED BY PRESS AGENT

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Harry C. Silver, a former newspaper writer and now her secretary, has brought an action in the Supreme Court against Lady Cook, the noted English suffragist, recently arrived in this country to recover $2,500 damages for an alleged breach of contract. Silver bases his suit on the fact that for several years he did work for Lady Cook, in connection with certain books that she contemplated putting on the market, combining her views on women's rights to vote. It was said that he not only supplied her with his literary ability, but that he also wrote several articles for her which appeared in the newspapers here and abroad.

ELECTRIC WORKERS MEET.

Special meetings of locals No. 103 and No. 104 of the Boston Electrical Workers unions are called for to-night, to consider questions said to be of the greatest importance to men of that calling in this city. No. 103 meets at Wells Memorial building, and No. 104 at No. 724 Washington street.

2 MEN HURT IN CAR CRASH IN BACK BAY

Two men were severely hurt when two cars collided at Berkeley street and Massachusetts avenue at 8 a. m. to-day. The injured are:

CHRISTOPHER B. GINAN, twenty-one years old, No. 45 Emerson street, South Boston. Bruised and cut by flying glass. Taken to City Hospital.

EDWARD BUTTERS, fifty-six years old, Longwood avenue, Saugus. Left ankle fractured. Taken to City Hospital.

Both cars, one a Waltham and the other a Chestnut Hill car, were outward bound. The Waltham car was ahead and the Chestnut Hill car, going at good speed, crashed into the rear conbide of the car ahead. The vestibule was smashed.

Traffic was held up nearly a half hour. The collision was due to slippery rails.

BOOST GIVEN THE Y. M. C. A. FUND TO-DAY

Almost to the $250,000 mark went the Y. M. C. A. building fund mark today, when the total for the day was reported at the noon luncheon.

The sum reported today was only $22,685, but it was encouraging in view of the fact that William A. Gaston, head of the committee, was absent and did not report. He is out after large subscriptions and will not report until he gets them. A large amount of money for the cause is expected.

The committee reports showed as follows:

Citizens committee, $6,585; business men's committee, $13,368; young men's committee, $2,452. The previous total was $300,220, and with to-day's amount the sum stands $381,702, still about $170,000 from the goal that must be reached by the first of November.

Boys Begin Work.

To-night the boys of the Association, selected from the six hundred young members, will begin their work to help round out the fund. They are expected from all parts of Greater Boston, the territory covered by the membership, and will be in session from 7 to 11 o'clock. Short addresses will be delivered by Interstate national Secretary C. S. Ward and General Secretary George W. Mehaffey and Mr. Gaston and Mr. Kessler.

The six hundred boys have been divided into four groups, and these groups into smaller teams. Every part of the city will be canvassed, and it is expected that the boys, for whom the Y. M. C. A. is primarily intended, will be able to make a strong appeal to the people for funds.

Secretaries Ward and Mehaffey are not discouraged by the slowness with which the money is coming in. There are only four more days in which to work for the cause, and the sum to be raised is still large. But Mr. Ward and Mr. Mahaffey are confident that the people of Boston will not let the work fail when it is so near completion, and that in these last few days some Bostonian will be found who will give enough to round out the $500,000.

A Unique Contribution.

The following letter addressed to the subscription committee of the campaign organization was received from John Alden Lee, with a cash contribution inclosed:

Inclosed find check which please credit to the memory of Susan Hainard, born in Boston, pastured cows on the Common, played on the State House steps, for seventy-five years faithful nurse and servant, mender of boys' stockings and lifelong friend of the younger generation.

CALIFORNIA AMONG COTTON STATES

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 27. A 500-pound bale of cotton, valued at $80, and grown on the Imperial valley, which lies almost wholly below sea level, has arrived in Los Angeles. This bale of cotton marks an epoch in the history of the staple in this State. The total yield, the first cotton grown north of Texas this year, will amount to 1,000 bales, or a bale to each of the 1,000 acres planted. It is predicted that ten thousand acres in Imperial valley will be planted to cotton next year.

YOU MEN WHOSE BROTHERS DIED IN THEIR YOUTH—NO. II

By HERBERT KAUFMAN

YOU men whose brothers died in their youth and who set up windows and tablets and shafts to their memory can do something bigger and finer.

You can build living monuments—you can help some boy to the "up-way" and do it in the name of that "other" whom now you can only know when you sit at the loom of recollection and weave heartaching pictures of the "what-might-have-been."

If he was the RIGHT sort of a boy (that brother of yours) he would have preferred to have somebody glad that he came for "a little while" than to have an elaborate memorial which can benefit no one.

It would have pleased him more if you picked out some deserving chap whose poverty and responsibilities cut him off from mental, and ethical, and physical strengthening, and gave him a part of the chance which would have been HIS lot. If there is any way by which he knows what is happening since he went on the "long journey" he'd be glad if his influence is working for SOMEBODY'S betterment. The Y. M. C. A. is trying to build a "Helping Hand" so big that it can take hold of all the young men reaching out for uplift.

But it needs MORE FUNDS. Can't the memory of "Somebody" send your hand toward the check book?

Back copies of the AMERICAN containing these articles may still be obtained at the AMERICAN office.

LARGE SALES A FEATURE IN REALTY MART

A score of important sales of property in the citycn d suburbs was reported in the realty market to-day.

In the city the four-story brick business block and 946 square feet of land at No. 102 Union street, near Haymarket square, and assessed on a total valuation of $20,500, have been sold by the New England Trust Company, trustees, et al., to Hales W. Suter et al., trustees, title passing through William J. Stober. The land is taxed for $13,200.

In the Back Bay the property at No. 348 Marlboro street, between Gloucester and Hereford streets, has been sold by John A. Heath et al. to Wallace E. Sabine. This consists of a three and four-story brick dwelling and 1,500 square feet of land, assessed and taxed for $25,000, of which $12,900 is on the land.

Hugh McInnes has sold to Samuel Pendleton the block of five four-story brick buildings and 5,000 square feet of land on Old Harbor street, corner of Shawmut avenue, South End. This estate is assessed on a total valuation of $15,600, of which $5,300 is on the land.

In the North End the three-story frame building and 1,960 square feet of land at No. 29 Thacher street, extending through to Webster avenue, near Unity street, have been sold by Demetrio Camelio to Charles Rotolino. This property is taxed on a total of $9,000, of which $5,800 is on the land.

Sales of House Lots.

Another South end property sold is that at No. 150 West Newton street, between Tremont street and Columbus avenue, which has been purchased by Anna P. C. Fortiere et al. from William W. Arey, jr., of Edith Hanna, lot No. 92, 7,160 feet, who has for investment.

In Dorchester an important sale reported to-day is that of the block of four-story brick dwellings at Nos. 710-728-730 Washington street, opposite Dunbar avenue and between Walton and Bonin streets. There are also 11,200 square feet in the parcel. The Charlestown Five Cent Savings Bank conveyed to Henry D. Sharpe. The property is assessed on a total valuation of $25,500, of which $5,000 is on the land.

Sales in Charlestown.

In the same district the frame house and 10,075 square feet of land at No. 75 Lexington street, near Bunker Hill avenue, have been sold by Mary A. Hallahan to Mary E. Bird. This estate is taxed for a total of $1,200, of which $1,800 is on the land.

The Newton Savings Bank has sold to George W. Earle twenty-four lots of land, each having an average acreage of 2,500 square feet, on Kenrick and Sawyer avenues and Rowell street. These are comprised in the tract of land which was purchased by the bank in connection with dwellings at No. 1 big sale to Charlestown people is that of a tract of 30,000 square feet on Bunker Hill street, near the playground, and taxed for $18,500, or 20 cents a foot, which has been purchased by William L. Miller from Francis Lewis et al., trustees, and Minnie R. Stone.

Another Charlestown property sold is that at No. 51 Russell street, comprising three frame houses and 3,000 square feet of land, which have been purchased by Thomas J. Monahan from the Winchester Home of Aged Women, title passing through Frank Y. Noyes. This is taxed on a total valuation of $3,000, of which $1,800 is on the land.

In West Roxbury Benjamin Seaverns et al. have sold to Gertrude L. Bowen a lot of land on Seaverns avenue, near Bellevue, containing 9,175 square feet and taxed for $700.

THIS YARN'S ABOUT A POET GAY, WHO GOT 'IN BAD' OUT EVERETT WAY

In the station house at Everett all was quiet and serene, when suddenly a wild eyed man was forced upon the scene. His hair was long, his clothes awry, and close behind him stood a stalwart Everett cop—per by the name of William Wood.

"On what charge?" asked the sergeant, taking up his fountain pen. "Selling goods without a license," the policeman answered then. "This man I found selling peddling, selling poems from door to door, and refused to stop when told he should not do it any more."

"A peddler?" said the sergeant. "What did you say he sold?"

"I don't know what you'd call them. They're poems I was told."

Young man stand up," the sergeant cried. "Now what have you to say?"

"My name," replied the prisoner, "is Ariant A. Beiyea. I am a poet like Kipling and Longfellow and Poe, but when I call on publishers they always answer 'No.' And so the ancient conundrum I take my poems fine, and sell them to do pickle and to conserve the time. For I write on love and passion, with the old maids these go well; I write on war and soldier boys, the young ones think me swell. I write on death and sorrow and I make the old ones weep. In fact I write on everything from airships down to sleep. To draw of old, when knights were bold And barons held their sway,

"Hold on," exclaimed the sergeant, "young fellow, don't get gay.

"This is an honest station house, and poetry is a bore. Besides it really seems to me I've heard them lines before.

"On what charge?" asked the sergeant, taking up his fountain pen. "Selling goods without a license," the policeman answered then. "This man I found selling peddling, selling poems from door to door, and refused to stop when told he should not do it any more."

"A peddler?" said the sergeant. "What did you say he sold?"

STATE POLITICAL BATTLE CENTRES IN THE CITY

BOSTON IS CAPTURED BY SPELLBINDERS FOR SIX DAYS' CAMPAIGN

Boston to-day became a hotbed of politics and politicians. Democratic and Republican spellbinders poured into the city from every direction.

The city will have no rest until after November 2. State politics, District Attorney politics and Plan One-Plan Two politics will be drummed into the ears of every voter.

The bullabaloo began formally with to-day's noon rally in Faneuil Hall. Presidential James Donovan of the Democratic City Committee arranged the rally. Candidates Vahey, Foss and Pelletier, James J. Storrow and a dozen other orators fired the opening shots in the battle which will have Boston as its fighting ground for the next six days.

To-night the Republican candidates will hold forth in Boston. Draper, Frothingham, Hill, Stevens, Malone, Weeks, Hsin and a score of others will make a whirlwind tour of Wards 5, 8, 9, 10, 12 and 25. Three minutes each will be all the time allowed to Draper, Frothingham and Hill at each stop.

Democrats in Essex.

While the Republicans are holding rallies in Boston to-night the Democratic candidates on the State ticket will run up to Essex County. District Attorney Candidate Pelletier and the candidates for local offices will sew to it that the voters do not forget that there is a Democratic campaign in progress.

To-morrow the Democratic State candidates will return to Boston. In the evening they will make a whirlwind tour of several wards. Pelletier will travel with them. Friday night and Saturday there will be more whirlwinds. The Republicans will make another tour in Boston to-morrow night and leave the rest to the City committee.

The Republican tour to-night includes a stop at St. Paul's Church, Tremont and Camden streets, where the Colored Men's Republican League will be addressed. Last night the Democrats addressed a colored voters' meeting in the same place.

Governor Draper is standing the strain of the campaign with little bother. Mahoney is still suffering from a bad cold and are threatening to loaning his overcoat to Senator Gore when the two were touring the State last week. His voice is strong enough, however, to hurl a few verbal missiles at his Republican opponent. He has asked Governor Draper to answer the following:

Vahey Challenges Draper.

"1. Are you in favor of the fifty-hour law for women and children?

"2. Will you sign the eight hour bill next year?

"3. Are you in favor of direct nominations?

"4. What have you done and what are you going to do to destroy the power of the lobby in the State House?

"5. Are you in favor of the national income tax as advocated by the last two Republican Presidents, Roosevelt and Taft?

"6. Will you help to secure the adoption of a constitutional amendment authorizing the national Government to levy an income tax?

"7. What will you do to help reduce the prices of the necessaries of life?

"8. What will you do to help improve the conditions under which the great masses of the people of the State labor and toil?

"9. Why do you help to destroy home rule in the cities of the Commonwealth, like Boston and Taunton? Why did you not give the people of Boston the right to approve or reject any plan presented to them instead of compelling them to take one of two plans? Do you believe in the principle of home rule for our cities and towns?

"10. Are you in favor of the nomination of United States Senators by the people?"

Constipation and Appendicitis

The Latter Usually Caused By The Former, Which, In Turn, Has Its Origin In Intestinal Indigestion.

Chronic constipation is a disease which is about as prevalent as dyspepsia and indigestion. Nearly every one suffers from it occasionally, but there are millions of people who endure it habitually, and who are accustomed to resort to the use of laxatives and cathartics daily.

Many people seemed to have developed a perfect mania for taking pills, and instead of trying to ascertain the latent cause of the disease, and removing it by appropriate treatment, they are content to continue the reckless use of laxatives, aperients, drastic cathartics and violent purgatives, until finally inflammation of the bowels occurs, which reaches the appendix, and the result is appendicitis.

In investigating and tracing the causative factors of constipation and its frequent sequel, appendicitis, it has been noted by physicians that the majority of cases were preceded and accompanied by a long-standing gastro intestinal indigestion.

The idea that appendicitis is brought on by foreign bodies, such as seeds, etc., becoming lodged in the appendix, is an exploded theory. It is now definitely known that constipation is the most prolific cause of this dread disease, while the constipation itself is previously induced by intestinal indigestion, or anyiaeceous dyspepsia—the inability to digest starches—and the vitalization between cause and effect is readily seen and appreciated.

The absurdity of attempting to cure constipation by the use of physic should be apparent to every one. Laxative drugs and powerful purgatives will never cure a disease of the bowels, and those who make frequent or regular use of them will, sooner or later, be in an inflammatory condition of the intestinal system.

A person with first-class digestion will never be annoyed with chronic constipation, and when this trouble does exist, instead of slugging the system with pills, liquid laxatives, candy cathartics, etc., use a remedy which will cure the gastro-intestinal indigestion, and you will find that the constipation no longer bothers you, and with its removal, the risk of developing appendicitis will be reduced to the minimum.

STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS have been the means of curing numerous cases of constipation, by first curing the intestinal indigestion. They digest every kind of food in a single grain being capable of digesting 3,000 grains of alimentum, and in addition to pepsin and other powerful digestives, they also contain diastase, which converts starch into sugar, and readily cures anyiaceous dyspepsia and intestinal indigestion.

If you are suffering from dyspepsia, constipation, and, in fact, indigestion of any kind, don't run the risk of getting appendicitis, but strike at the root of the trouble—the original cause —by using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which will quickly rid you of all functional disorders of the alimentary tract.

Secure a box of this digestive remedy from your druggist for 50c and send your name and address to the F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich., for a free sample package.

KELIHER HITS AT CHARTER PLAN NO. 2

The dominating desire of those who planned and advocate Plan Two is to remove the city government as far from the people as possible," says Congressman John A. Keliher. At an address before the Concord Club he attacked Plan Two and its advocates.

"Plan Two," he says, "was devised by men who declare themselves to be specialists, to be possessed of nearly if not all the knowledge pertaining to municipal government. Did you ever hear anything to be perfect in the eyes of a specialist?

They argue that if their nonsensical ideas are put into effect there will be a complete metamorphosis of the voting population of this city. This upon its face is absurd. They adopt the same policy of 'down with the bosses' and in the same breath shriek for a plan that will make possible more objectionable bosses than have ever been known. Plan Two provides, as every bosses for them to play upon the passions, prejudice and gullibility of the people. Under Plan Two the political hypocrite who would pledge municipal innovations that would enhance the property of the city if it were twice as large, is the dangerous man to entrust with power. Such a man is apt to triumph. Think of having Jim Mahoney for four years. Such a man, a bane of the body politic of the people, a disgrace to humanity, a menace to decent government, one of the main causes of the political gossipers' delight, a man who declared that Garner drove the street car men to work in the early Brockton strike fostered reckless

LODGE IS BUSY ON HIS SPEECH

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge was busy to-day preparing a speech that he expects to deliver to Faneuil Hall next Saturday night. Congressman Gillett, his colleague, was busy trying to stamp out the Republican insurrection in his bailiwick, Essex county.

Ex-Lieut. Gov. Wardwell, State House lobbyist, went up to Republican headquarters in the Kimball Building and took up the management of the Draper-Frothingham campaign. Wardwell, a master hand at State street office say that I. this was summoned to headquarters by Representative Draper.

Republican district bosses from Essex, the Cape and other sections visited headquarters to-day and informed Wardwell that things are looking great for Vahey and Foss.

Political News of Both Parties.

State Ex-Alderman Fred Hodgen to-day said that he was not a candidate for Lowell in educating the people on the merits of the two charter plans. The alderman one of the father who was urging his sick son to take a dose of castor oil. "You can have it flavored with either milk or coffee, he said, but you'll have to take it." That's the situation in Boston to-day. The voters are compelled to take a remedy and it's a question which is the least disagreeable." Which is somewhat to the point.

Alderman George F. Anderson, who is a Democrat and Republican, is suffering much embarrassment because of the fact that a good many voters feel that he was the author of the letter containing a strong endorsement of the Democratic candidate for District Attorney. "That's a good letter you wrote," said one of his friends to him at the rooms of the Democratic State Committee. "It's fine, but I didn't write it," said the Alderman, in making his 29th denial. George W. Anderson, the well-known Democratic attorney, was the author of the letter in question.

This is the season for political forgeries, and here is the first indictment by the managers of the candidates for District Attorney. Tom Wiles, manager for Hill, says Hill will carry the county by at least 8,000. Tom Lasche, manager for Pelletier, says that the Democratic candidate will be an easy winner and it is only a question of the majority. He figures it will be 10,000. John Moran of Lon Moran's committee says that the independent candidate will be a winner, but he will not venture to tell the figures until the latter part of the week.

There will be music dispensed by an orchestra between the speeches at the Plan Two rally in the ward room, Meeting House Hill, tonight. "We're fighting for the people's plan on a musical scale as well as a practical one," says James A. McElligott, Jr., who will preside. John R. Murphy will be the principal speaker.

It's the most effective advertising that has been put out in a State fight in a good many years, one of the Democratic managers said to-day. Ex-Alderman Fred Hodgen, addicted yesterday, commenting upon the Democratic campaign and the Vahey-Foss ticket. "A pretty compliment from the opposing camp, is it not."

Representative "Tom" Riley of Malden was a temporary chairman of the Democratic State Convention, is making a great fight for a third term in his home city. He has corralled a bunch of fifteen speakers for Malden this week. Monday evening and expects to wind up in a blaze of glory. Riley has done some effective work for the State ticket besides running his own campaign.

Predictions of the plurality of the Democratic State ticket in Boston heard at the rooms of the Democratic State Committee yesterday run all the way from 16,000 to 28,000. Some of the leaders are imagining that the vote will equal that given Governor Douglas.

"It's a pipe that Hill win win," said Colonel Lomasney of the fight but Hill's going to be beaten. I'm certain that he will say he "said it is not certain that he will not get Pelletier's vote, since Joe is so interested to vote for Republican candidates."

At a certain uptown hotel where the "push" gather after the rallies it is no secret that a prominent Democratic supporter with an office in the Kimball building has $5,000 to bet on the Democratic candidate if even money bet can be obtained. Nobody appears to cover it. A few small bets have been made on the district attorney fight, most of them at even money but the fight is regarded as so close that few want to risk a big amount on it.

Councilman John L. Donovan of Ward 7, who is running for representative on an anti-Hibbard platform has engaged the three "riddlewalk" bands to parade during the primary fight and will run opposition sight seeing parties to those run by the State Committee.

SUFFRAGISTS ON THE STUMP IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Oct. 27. The most notable festation of the spread of political interest among women has added an interesting phase to the mayoralty campaign. Friday at their new headquarters in No. 505 Fifth avenue, three women's clubs are hard at work in behalf of Otto T. Bannard, the Republican-Fusion candidate. Other clubs are working independently for W. R. Hearst, Civic Alliance candidate.

A personal canvass in different sections of the city is the principal part of the women campaigners' programme. There will be meetings a plenty conducted in the open, too, and in their handsomely furnished headquarters the ballot will share the honors with tea. The three clubs at the head of the movement, which is declared to have no direct connection with the work of the suffragists, are the Civic League, West End and the State Women's Republican Club.

Other developments to-day were the reported control of Democratic primaries and the attacks of the candidates and supporters on one another.

The charges against Judge William J. Gaynor, Democratic candidate, were made with the brokerage firm of N. B. Goodbody & Co. of Boston. The court ruled that the firm was owned by H. Goodenough and Anna F. Goodenough, both of Natick, as executors of the estate of Mrs. Anna Gaynor than B. Goodenough, but that he might bring his action against James Kennedy and Charles R. Worth, both of Newton, and Goodenough's partners.

MALONEY WON'T SUPPORT DRAPER

Robert S. Maloney, Republican chairman of the Lawrence Board of Aldermen and organizer for the International Typographical Union, is out flat-footed against Governor Draper and to-day completed the campaign committee of the American Federation of Labor to deny the claim emanating from New Bedford that the favored the re election of the Governor. He is a Republican.

TWO KILLED BY TRAIN.

STAMFORD, Pa., Oct. 27.—Norman C. Watson, an Erie Railroad telegraph operator, and Rose Davis were killed at Transfer, Pa., by an express train due in Buffalo at 8:30 this morning. Incomplete reports say that Watson had been going to Transfer to meet Miss Davis, last night, and that he overslept himself and missed the train. He was then driving to Transfer in a buggy when he was struck by the express.

FRUIT DEALER ASSIGNS.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 27.—Philip Eddy, a well known fruit dealer, has assigned to Howard N. Knight, with estimated liabilities of about $5,000, and half that amount in assets.

COLE LIKELY TO SHOW HIS HAND LATER

Ex Speaker John N. Cole the insurgent Republican who has been freely criticising Republican leaders and the Republican platform, made a speech at Mayrick last night that is significant of future trouble for the bosses. In its report of the rally the Springfield Republican said:

"John N. Cole of Andover, formerly Speaker of the House next addressed the meeting, and said that he occupied a unique position, being the only one of the candidates who didn't hold an office who didn't want an office at the present time. He said that he was not in the game at present, but that he was leading strictly to business and that he was just as good a Republican as ever. He touched briefly on several questions of interest, and made a lively speech, which was well received by the audience."

RECOVER $12,047 IN A STOCK DEAL

Max Lastin was awarded $12,047 by a jury at Dedham today. He sued for $20,000 because of stock buying transactions with the brokerage firm of N. B. Goodenough & Co. of Boston. The court ruled that the firm was owned by H. Goodenough and Anna F. Goodenough, both of Natick, as executors of the estate of Mrs. Anna Gaynor than B. Goodenough, but that he might bring his action against James Kennedy and Charles R. Worth, both of Newton, and Goodenough's partners.

ABBOTT FOR INCOME TAX

Help!

Senator Gideon E. Abbott of Dorchester is going to vote for the income tax if he is elected to the Legislature. Abbott is usually a G. O. P. anytime man, but he has had all the G. O. P. gang he will be needed.

To-day he sent the following letter to Michael J. Murray, his Democratic opponent:

Dear Sir: I have just received your letter dated October 25, but post marked as received at the Essex street office October 25 and sent over registered mail. If you had sent it on the day it was dated you would have received it Monday afternoon and my reply would have been in your hands early Monday morning. "Income tax." You must get your head clear before going to bed. I stand on the Watson wing going to straighten out his books when killed.

GIRLS MAY START SHOE MAKERS' WAR

MARLBORO, Oct. 27.—A war between the United Shoe Workers of America and the Boot & Shoe Workers' Union, each crippled for so long the shoe industry of Lynn, is feared in this city as the result of the action of about fifteen girls employed in the Maple street factory of the W. L. Douglas Shoe Company. They left their work because they refused to join the Boot & Shoe Workers' Union unless they received the same wages raised last fall by the union for the majority of its members.

MORGAN BUYS PRIZED POET'S MANUSCRIPT

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—The original manuscripts of many of the most sightly signed works of Poe, Longfellow, Whittier, Emerson, and other American classics, a collection gathered after many years by S. H. Wakeman, a wealthy New York merchant, have been added to the library of J. P. Morgan.

The Wakeman collection has long been well known to collectors, and has been valuated at various times as worth from $50,000 to $150,000.

MRS. HARRIMAN HAS TAKEN OFFICE SUITE

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Mrs. E. H. Harriman does not intend to leave the management of her vast fortune entirely to her lawyers and advisers, but will actively conduct her own business affairs. With this end in view she has taken a lease of offices at No. 475 Fifth avenue. The building is the uptown branch of the Farmers' Loan & Trust Company, and is between Fortieth and Forty-first street, opposite the new public library. Mrs. Harriman's offices will cover the greater part of the second floor.

HILL REFUSES MORAN DEBATE

District Attorney Hill has turned down the invitation of Alonzo D. Moran, his non-partisan opponent, to meet him in debate on the stump. Pressure of office duties, he says, will bar him from preparing for such a meeting and from a daytime debate. A full schedule of evening rallies for every night until election prevents such a debate at night, even without preparation.

Michael J. Murray, Democratic nominee for Senator in the Sixth Suffolk District, has declared in favor of the Income Tax Amendment and challenges his Republican opponent, Gideon E. Abbott, to state his position. Speak up, Gideon. Not only Murray, but everyone in your district would like to know.

The letter in which Murray asks neighbor Abbott to come out and show his colors is a gem of sarcasm. After a page of nicely pointed arrows at Candidate Abbott and the whole G. O. P. outfit, Murray winds up with this: "Trusting that you will understand the friendly spirit in which I write, I remain, etc., etc."

What does that mean? In a statement issued from the Pelletier campaign headquarters, Councilor Edward P. Barry is quoted as denying Representative Powers's statement that he is a member of the Lon Moran campaign committee and as saying "It is my intention to vote and speak for the entire Democratic State ticket." The question Democratic leaders are most interested in is, Whom is Councilor Barry going to vote for for District Attorney? Pelletier or Moran?

There is also this paragraph in the statement sent out by Pelletier leaders: "Any statement in Ward 15 which calls for the sidestanking of the regular Democratic nominee has never been popular, as the ward is one of the Democratic strongholds of the city. Read voters' history, gentlemen. Don't you remember what happened to Tom Hart and some other folks over in Ward 13?

HERE'S PUZZLE IN FUR COATS

Executive Secretary Loring of the Democratic State Committee has found his forehead increased. Chairman Fred J. Macleod of the State Committee, the big chief of the Vahey-Foss campaign, also lost his fur lined coat. Chief William Leeceq Bunton of the State Committee police is investigating.

The most puzzling thing about the affair is that the Loring and Macleod coats are so very, very much alike. Even two of them exactly alike, except for length. Macleod's was four inches longer than Loring's. Which being left inadvertently for to dinner that always had to take both garments from the locker and measure them to see which was his.

Loring's coat was missed two days ago from the State Committee rooms on Beacon street. Macleod's coat was missed today. Just about the time that the chairman missed his garment from No. 15 Beacon street, the secretary found his at the State Committee annex in the Quincy House. How it got there is a mystery.

Chairman Macleod inspected Loring's coat later to-day and said that he would have sworn the coat was his own—if he had reached the Quincy House before Loring did. The executive secretary allowed that he would have sworn to his coat from his coat. He insisted on wearing the garment even while he worked at his desk to-day.

KNEELAND WILL TALK ABOUT VETO

Ex-Alderman Fred J. Kneeland is to ask the privilege of the platform at the Democratic rally in New Bedford to-night in order to state his case of organized labor against Governor Draper and especially to reply to Representative Doyle of Fall River, who defends the Governor's veto of the eight-hour bill. The rally promises to be one of the most interesting of the campaign.

WHISKEY FOR LAME BACK

Unusual Prescription by Renowned Physician is Producing Wonderful Results.

The unusual use of whiskey for lame back and rheumatism is causing considerable discussion among the medical fraternity. It is an almost infallible cure when mixed with certain other ingredients as is often proved. The following is the formula:

To one half pint of good whiskey add one ounce of Toris compound and one ounce syrup Sarsaparilla compound. Take in tablespoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.

Toris compound is a product of the laboratories of the Globe Pharmacal Co. of Chicago, but it as well as the other ingredients can be had from any good druggist.

MUTT IN THE NEW YORK CAMPAIGN

HE SAYS THAT THE PRESS HAS TREATED HIM UNFAIRLY---By BUD FISHER

JEFFRIES MUST SUFFER A SECOND OPERATION ON HIS NOSE TO-DAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—"This is the first good breath of air I have had in six years." Big Jim Jeffries walked out of the Flatiron building into Broadway, threw out his chest and drank in all the Autumn ozone his mighty lungs could hold. Jeffries had just come from the doctor, who had burned out the right nostril of his nose.

He will have the left side burned out to-day.

"Bob Fitzsimmons pounded me so hard on the bridge of my nose in our first fight at Coney Island," went on Jim, "that I have never been able to breath properly since. I never knew what the matter was until yesterday. I thought all along that the bridge of my nose had been shattered and the bone had grown off at a tangent some way. The doctor took a peek, and, much to my surprise, told me it was a fleshy growth in both of my nostrils that was keeping the good air out of my lungs."

And then Sam Berger dipped in an ost. The doctor insisted on Jeff taking opiates, but the big fellow grunted and said he thought perhaps he might be able to stand a little thing like scratching his nose. The doctor told him that it wasn't merely a matter of cutting, but that the obstruction would have to be removed by a burning process. The medico explained to Jeff that he would have to insert a wire attached to a battery and singe the growth away with electricity.

"You can't stand the pain, Mr. Jeffries, and you had better take a sleep potion," said the doctor. Jeffries scowled at him, rubbed his cauliflower ear and offered. "Never mind about the pain, but just burn it out, Doc. I won't squeal a bit."

"It took the doctor and I a half hour of earnest conversation to get Jeff to rub a little cocaine on his nose. That's as close to a knockout as he ever came, and he told the doctor so. He sat back in the chair while that medical chap fairly fried the inside of his nose, and Jeff didn't as much as unclasp his hands. I never saw such grit. It looked like the days of Pompeii, for his old nose was smoking like those good old Bros hills."

$100,000 OFFER FOR FIGHT FROM COALINGO, CAL.

COALINGO, Cal., Oct. 27.—N. S. Reed, manager for the Coalings A. C., to-day wired the following to James J. Jeffries in New York:

"James J. Jeffries, undefeated champion of the world: Offer you $100,000 to fight Jack Johnson here. Wire acceptance, and we will put certified check in my bank.

Coalings, Cal., which thus squeezes onto the map and precipitates itself into public notice, is a town of 100 population about seventy-five miles southeast of Fresno and nearly as many miles out of consequence.

COFFROTH WILL BID FOR FIGHT WHEN MEN SIGN

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—James W. Coffroth, the California fight promoter, is here waiting around for Jeffries and Johnson to come together. After they have agreed on conditions he will be prepared to bid for the match, is talking of this matter to-day.

"When the men are signed up I'll make my bid, and let me say right now that when this fight is pulled off I will be staged right in my Colma arena. I have the place for the big show and I think that I can offer enough to get the battle.

"This fight will be one of the hardest ever staged. This fellow Johnson is the wonder of the ring. His cleverness is something remarkable, and he can hit hard enough for all practicable big purposes. He is a real champion, and don't you forget it.

"What chance has Johnson with Jeffries? Well, that is not a hard question to answer. He has an even chance. Were I to make a book on the battle I would call it the best, and money down in the world. The public is going to make Jeffries about a 2 to 1 choice, but such odds will be cheap. Jeffries must be right to whip this big black fellow, and I guess that he is in pretty fair shape.

"There has been a lot of talk about that knockdown of Johnson in the final round of the champion's battle with Ketchel. I believe that Jack was floored fairly and squarely. He started from his corner and Ketch started a hard overhand right. Johnson did not see or know what it was, but or try to get inside the blow, and as a result the punch landed while Jack was off balance. He went down, and as Ketchel rushed in jumped to his feet and opened up the most bitter assault I have seen in a ring.

JEFFRIES TO STAR IN A PLAY AFTER SIGNING ARTICLES

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 27.—Sam Berger, Jeffries's manager, and Tobin Gideon of this city have written a play in which Jeffries is to appear. It is on the lines of "Lady Chockett." The play has been submitted to a playwright for criticism and necessary alterations, and announcement soon will be made in the East. Berger will take one of the parts, Jeffries, of course, being the hero. "When will Jeffries go on the stage?" was asked of the man who gave out the information.

"Right after signing, it was the response. "It is understood that he will not wait for a fight with Johnson, but will take another ring at the theatrical game as soon as possible."

SAYS JEFF CAN NAME THE TERMS

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—Jeff can name the split of the money, so long as he gives the bulk of it to the winner. Winner take all, 75 and 25 or 60 and 40 will go for me. There might be a slight hitch when we talk about the referee, but that will be easily settled. I can see nothing that should result in anything other than a peaceful meeting.—Jack Johnson this forenoon while preparing to take his departure for New York with his manager, George Little, to meet Jeffries there to-morrow.

"I am not going to insist on a side bet, of course. I have money ready to cover on that Jeff will put up, but I won't demand a wager. I will bet up to $2,000 that I can defeat Jeffries, who at present knows not what it is to be a loser. Jeff can have all or part of it," said Johnson.

"If I have not heard from Berger just when we will meet, but I am sure all will be arranged before my arrival in New York.

"I have stated right from the start that I want to fight Jeff, and I believe I have shown in every movement that I am living up to my word. We will be in New York together and if Jeffries and I can be brought together I will be ready to draw up articles and sign. I read with much care the plan of Jeffries, and unless something unforseen crops up I see no trouble ahead.

Hopes for Friendly Greeting.

"Some people are of the impression that there is going to be a lot of wrangling about the ring, but I will hold out for no ring, but I will hold out for one on that Jeff will put up, but I won't demand a wager. I will bet up to $2,000 that I can defeat Jeffries, who at present knows not what it is to be a loser. Jeff can have all or part of it," said Johnson.

"If I have not heard from Berger just when we will meet, but I am sure all will be arranged before my arrival in New York.

Sure of Stopping Jeff.

"Do I think I can stop Jeffries before the limit?

"Yes, most certainly, but please don't let the impression get around that I think I have an easy mark to fight in Jeffries. I expect a hard battle, and expect to get some punishing blows, but I will be returned the winner."

Johnson, though favoring California as the scene of the battle, says he will fight anywhere save in Australia. He bars that spot because of the unfair treatment he has received when he was there training for Burns.

M'KINNON HURTS HIS KNEE IN FOURTH ROUND AND GARDNER WINS THE BOUT

Bill McKinnon slipped the semilunar cartilage in his knee out of place in the fourth round of his battle with Jimmy Gardner of Lowell at the Armory A. A. last night and the mishap put him out of commission and made Gardner the winner.

When the accident occurred Bill was like a ship with a broken rudder, as he could not navigate properly with one of his propellers in need of repair and he was forced to throw up the match to Gardner when the signal for the fifth round period rang out. It was a bit of hard luck for Mc-Kinnon, but like everything else can be reckoned as the fortunes of war.

While the conflict lasted the fans saw the fiercest rounds of battling in the ring it had been their lot to gaze upon, as Mc-Kinnon was on deck to wipe out the two defeats Gardner held over him, while Gardner, backed up by a lusty delegation from Lowell, was there to make good for the third time.

The accident that caused the suspension of the battle happened in the fourth round when the two battlers had hardly got warmed up. McKinnon stumbled to the mat, pulling Gardner on top of him, and they were all tangled up. Gardner was the first to get on his feet, but McKinnon failed to get up. Instead he grasped his right foot and began vigorously twisting it. It was evident that some part of Bill's underpinning was out of gear, but he attempted to get into an upright position and Gardner rushed him before he could get straightened out. He got a smash, but McKinnon luckily pulled away in time, while Gardner was roundly booed for taking an advantage which was justifiable by the rules but not warranted.

There was a noticeable difference between McKinnon's fighting immediately, as he was unable to lose confidence and Gardner went in all the harder. They had a hot mixup and McKinnon was getting the best of it when his handicap when he suddenly slipped to the mat. Again he grasped his foot in an effort to twist the cartilage into place and before the referee could start to count over him he was on his props once more.

Gardner, finished with the way the battle was going in his favor, took more chances to reach McKinnon with some damaging punches, but the Roxbury boy was game and stood up to the punishment and fought back with his never failing courage.

When he went to his corner his second learned what had happened and they refused to let him go on when the bell announced the fifth round, and though he made valiant efforts to get out of his corner, the towel was thrown in against his wishes by Sailor Gallagher, his second.

There were no fancy frills for any operations when they got the word, both got right down to real business as soon as the bell rang and for the five going I'll the unfortunate damage to McKinnon's underpinning occurred in his favor. Gardner was willing way McKinnon hit the gong up for all he was worth when the bell sounded and was backing Gardner all over the ring, during the first session as he hurled Gardner self pell mell at the Lowell welterweight.

Gardner was content to let matters rest and was tying McKinnon up in his savage clinches with both hands swinging over backed to the ropes to avoid the oncoming storm of punches. The referee decided to tactics of the star member of the Gardner family got him out of a lot of trouble.

That first round was the only one McKinnon won and it finds favor as Jimmy saw that it was up to him to show his hand and there was something classy in the way he handled himself. He began to force McKinnon with his deadly left, making his blows find the mouth and opening it in savage hooks to the body with the same fist. McKinnon was clearly up to the art and made a poor attempt at hooking and slugging with the left hand himself.

The burst of speed Gardner caught in the first round was enough for Mc-Kinnon. He walked around his bulky foe, measuring him with his left, shooting it to the head and at close range peppered away with both hands while Mac was busily engaged in tying him up.

It looked like a sure victory for Jimmy at the gait he was going, and he could keep up for three minutes more he knew he got started early to pile up a big lead and appeared to be in his best form.

Heavyweights Meet.

The heavyweight clash in the semifinal bout between Tim Sullivan of Newburyport and Andy Morris of East Boston was about the liveliest match in the class that has been pulled off around these parts. Sullivan was given the decision at the end of eight rounds, but it was a very shallow one, for the Saddle Islander was on the job all the time and had big Tim in distress on several occasions.

Morris carried the fight in the early rounds, nearly telescoping Sully with a right hand wallop shot. He mixed some hard rights on the jaw, but they failed to have the lasting effect. Going the last rounds Sullivan kept away just scored points by boxing, never letting Morris close in on him.

Andy McDougal of South Boston had a warm session with Mike Malia, with honors earned all right and a draw met with favor.

BOUT BY ROUNDS.

ROUND ONE—Both sparred for an opening and McKinnon was the first to lead and he hooked left on Jimmy's jaw. Then Gardner rushed in and landed with left on head and right to body. They stung Mac, who rushed Jimmy to the ropes, but could not get over a punch as Gardner was covered up with his guard. Again Mac rushed, but Jimmy was under wraps. Jimmy swung a left but fell short and Mac went at him again, only to be countered. Mac finally landed Jimmy on the head and they clinched. McKinnon piled in with right and left flying for the head and they hung together fighting at short range. Mac bridled with aggrieved ness and had Jimmy going to the ropes to escape the onslaught. Jimmy let go a hard right, but miscalculated, as Mac got inside of the swing and the left Gardner was being forced to the ropes. McKinnon's round.

ROUND TWO—Gardner opened, putting left on head and following with right cross, skimming right on jaw, but he got a fearful swift from Jimmy's left on the body. They sparred without head to any defense till Gardner sent right to the head and Mac rushed to the ropes, but Jimmy snapped over a left jab as Mac came in. Gardner's left found Mac's jaw to tantalize with his educated left and landed it up against McKinnon's face, as the clinches Jimmy kept busy ramming his left over on the body. McKinnon's eye seemed blinded, while Gardner kept peckaway with his left and swinging right on Mac got together and rushed Jimmy across the ring at the belt Gardner's round.

ROUND THREE—After feinting, Jimmy swung for the jaw, but it started Mac rushing, but he failed to land. Gardner shot left range Mac replied with aggressiveness and had Jimmy going to the ropes to escape the onslaught. Jimmy let go a hard right, but miscalculated, as Mac got inside of the swing and the left Gardner was being forced to the ropes. McKinnon's round.

ROUND FOUR—Gardner opened, putting left on head and following with right cross, skimming right on jaw, but he got a fearful swift from Jimmy's left on the body. They sparred without head to any defense till Gardner sent right to the head and Mac rushed to the ropes, but Jimmy snapped over a left jab as Mac came in. Gardner's left found Mac's jaw to tantalize with his educated left and landed it up against McKinnon's face, as the clinches Jimmy kept busy ramming his left over on the body. McKinnon's eye seemed blinded, while Gardner kept peckaway with his left and swinging right on Mac got together and rushed Jimmy across the ring at the belt Gardner's round.

DOCTOR TO ONCE MORE OPERATE ON JEFFRIES

STRAIGHT DOPE
FOR SPORT FANS

ACCORDING TO THE PRESENT plans, the members of the Armory A. A. will have a chance to see a series of star bouts during the next few weeks. Next week Sam Langford and John Haynes, a big negro from Chicago, who, under the name of "Klondike," has fought more than one hundred battles and lost but five, book up together. The following week Jimmy Walsh and Tommy O'Toole try conclusions, and on November 15 Ralph Calloway, the California negro, will try to regain the laurels lost to Porky Flynn in their recent combat. The bout between Porky and Calloway is to be re-staged at the request of many members of the club. Harry Lewis will be seen again at the Armory on November 23, when he will meet either Calloway or Kyle Whitney. All in all, it looks as if some stirring times were framed up for Boston fans.

NOW WOULDN'T THIS MAKE YOU grab on with both hands. Evidently my mission in life is a failure when I thought I was running a sporting column and Edith thinks it's a lot of fashion dope. Read the sad blow:

Straight Dope:

If I have been trimming the dresses and hats for the BOSTON AMERICAN in the SUNDAY HOSTESS MAGAZINE, I do not see why I am to nail them into having a coat, they say, but presume that the contest will come under your department. Kindly let me know through your column, and I will forward the fashion.

Also kindly decide the following bet:

A bets that ladies' coats will be short this winter. B bets that they are to be long. Now, as I think that you are a pretty good judge of everything, I will leave you to settle. Hoping to see this in your "Straight Dope" column at your earliest convenience, I remain, most sincerely, EDITH S.

Providence, R. I.

Send along the dressed up dresses and hats, Edith, but please send them to anyone on the American but me. My wife might find them and it always spoils her sunny disposition to find me in the possession of clothes belonging to a female woman. In regards to the wager. I am sure coats will not be worn long if the fee goes out about the first of March.

HERE'S A RECIPE FOR A FOOTBALL player which some unknown contributor sends me:

Take one big man. To reduce fatness work him during the hottest part of September until his trousers fit in the knees and his shirt is wet with hot and hard lifting. Second, till any bones come through the flesh. Select them with leather pads. Third, work on the gridiron during most of October and November. But never let him smell the aroma of spice, pepper and ginger. After chopping up well serve on the gridiron to the opponents for Thanksgiving dinner. Excellent reason gravy can be made by boiling his bones for over.

If he makes a misplay it might be well to put him on the gridiron after the game and roast him to a frazzle.

Straight Dope, Boston American:

Dear Sir—As we are interested readers of your column, we would like to have you settle a bet for us. We claim that it is in good condition and that Johnson can't or should delay the fight with Johnson until March or April, the paper states that Jeffries is ready to fight now. Yet he wants to wait five or six months. Will you please give us your ideas on this subject in your next issue of the Boston American oblige.

MICHAEL E. HARRIS and AUGUSTUS SHERMAN.

Providence, R. I.

If you read this column regularly you would be perfectly familiar with my dope as to why Jeff wants to get on the waiting list with Johnson. I have explained this so much that I am getting a husky voice from writing it. If Jeff ever fights Johnson she you get that "if"? he wants to get the bounds to be derived from training a large bunch of weeks on the vaudeville stage at so much per. Incidentally Johnson may get killed by his automobile, or he may hook up in some other match in the meantime and get trimmed. In either event I don't believe Jeff would shed many tears, for I really don't think Jeff wants any of the big negro's game, in spite of all the guff that has been sprung on it since the former champion arrived from Europe. I don't blame him, either.

H. A. S., SOMERVILLE—YOU ARE about the limit as a hard loser. You really shouldn't wager so much as two bits when you can't afford to lose it, and don't bet against your home team. Let me tell you something, J. D. Deininger, who wrote the article you refer to, has forgotten more about football than you could possibly cram into that spoonful of addled shuffle you fondly imagine is your brain. Carry this one along with you, too: Never knock a letter man yourself, and if you follow my advice in this you'll never knock anyone.

IT SEEMS AS IF THE MANTLE OF William Muldoon, one of the most popular wrestlers that ever graced the mat, has fallen on the massive shoulders of Pat Conolly. Ever since Conolly won the heavyweight championship of Great Britain the people of Ireland, especially those of Gal-

BOB KERNAN ON HAND TO HELP HARVARD OUT

An arrival at Soldier's Field is Robert J. Kernan, the captain of Harvard's varsity eleven in 1902, who has come to Cambridge to work with the Harvard kickers and to help the team's attack for the West Point game Saturday.

Kernan is the most recent Harvard man to gain the distinction of making his "H" in three varsity sports in one college year, for besides being a varsity halfback, he caught for the baseball nine and was Harvard's best high jumper the same season.

One says he left the baseball field in the course of a varsity match, ran over to the field where Harvard was playing against Yale, jumped higher than six feet, and then returned and finished the game behind the bat.

Kernan is a fellow who will bolster Harvard's spirit on the field and support it off. All in all, he should be able to do a lot with the Crimson kicking game as it stands the finishing touches.

Doubtless he will get a little more height and distance to Minot's kicks, for with the fast ends Harvard has this year the long kicks than Minot made in the Brown game could be covered, and securely.

GOTCH TO MEET ITALIAN CHAMP

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—Frank Gotch of Humboldt, Ia., champion of the world, and Giovanni Raicevich, champion of Italy, met in the office of the sporting editor of the Chicago American and signed articles to meet November 9 for a finish wrestling match at the Coliseum, Chicago, two falls in three, Police Gazette rules. GOLF GOSSIP
NEWS OF THE LINKS

Even though the golfing season is closed so far as open tournament play is concerned, there is as yet no signs of lack of interest in the game at any of the local courses. Club events are scheduled for all of the greater Boston clubs over the week, including Thanksgiving Day, and friendly matches are going on during the week among the members while the good weather permits.

Miss Dorothy Campbell has helped golf among the women not a little by her play, and especially by her repeated wins. All of the courses this year has visited show the effects of her play, for there are almost two women players on the links now-a-day to where there were formerly one.

Dr. H. A. Roark and W. C. Chick have not played off their tie for low gross prize in the Oakley Country Club open tournament. While the odds would naturally favor Chick in the playoff, owing to his lower rating in Massachusetts, it is not anything like a foregone conclusion, for Dr. Roark is capable of putting up a very strong game, and is at the top of his form this Fall.

Wollaston has always been very generous as a club in allowing matches and tournaments to be played on their pretty course in Montclair, over which the club itself has no jurisdiction. This year the B. A. A. held their open event and club championship there, and Leslie George Wright, one of the members, is holding his invitation tournament for the veteran golfers of the State.

SIR MARTIN RUNS THIRD IN BIG RACE

NEWMARKET, Eng., Oct. 27.—The Cambridgeshire stakes, one of the most important of the fall handicaps of this meeting, was won to-day by E. A. Wigan's Christmas Daisy. The distance was nine furlongs.

Montagu Nevill, on the Duke of Portland's colt Martin Isbel, finished third. Besides Sir Martin there were two other American starters, James R. Keene's Hallet and August Belmont's Polo-Hunt. Eighteen horses ran.

SAM CRAWFORD SIGNS CONTRACT

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 27.—Sam Crawford, the hard-hitting centre-fielder of the Tigers, has signed a contract with President Navin, of the Detroit team, for two years more. The terms were not made public, but both parties expressed satisfaction with them.

BASEBALL
NEWS AND NOTES

The annual fight in the Eastern League has started a bit early, but it is here and will be settled at the meeting of the organization in New York next Tuesday.

* * *

Tough on Ty Cobb to have to pay $500 of his own money to Cleveland. That they would if he will get him. Only under such terms he uses it only on the diamond. Stubborn will power is what made Cobb as great as he is.

* * *

Chicago fans expect wonders from Hughey Duffy, and when he takes hold of the White Sox next Spring he will have the stable of the Windy City with him.

* * *

The Three I League is also a president. This body is trying to secure one, while the Eastern League is trying to lose one. Better make a deal.

* * *

The Champion Pittsburg have all inked it for home. Two of them will be in double harness when they report in the Spring. These are Hoart and Camnitz. Hyatt has got to trot all the way to Victoria, B. C., to get hitched. Camnitz lives in the civilized state and gets spliced in Buffalo, N. Y.

* * *

Fred Clarke, carrying his world's series money in a grip, beat it for Winfield, Kan., the old Kansas. In his own auto he will travel to Winfield and use his surplus cash in improving his large farm there.

* * *

Phillipps is another farmer, and he hustled to Butler, Pa., to get in by last squabbles.

* * *

Old Cy Young has won 497 games in major league baseball. He hoped to make it 500 even this last season, but he lost his last two games and then was sent home by Medders. He will be after the necessary three next year.

* * *

The strike-out record of the season is sixteen made by Nap Rucker of Brooklyn against St. Louis.

* * *

Catcher Gibson of the new World's Champions says that Howard Camnitz is the best pitcher in the league with the exception of Matheweon.

Bill Lange, formerly outfielder of the Chicago team, and last season scout for the Reds, may be the next president of the Pacific Coast League.

Boxing News in Brief Form

The show at the Armory club next Tuesday night will prove an exciting one while it is under way. Besides the grand principal contest between Sam Langford in a ten-round bout, the management has arranged that the Windy City man tackles quite both a dangerous opponent for anyone. Only a few months ago he went through a six-round contest with Sailor Darling, Langford, and he only had a few more rounds to go than Johnson.

* * *

Negotiations are pending for a meeting of the Armory club, November 8, between Jimmy Walsh of this city, and Dooley, of Philadelphia.

* * *

Vernon Austin, the middle-weight champion of the northwest, who knocked out Billy Rhodes in one round, is to visit the east shortly for matches arranged against the best men in his class.

* * *

Entries for the nine classes at 115, 125 and 135 pounds at the big amateur meeting to be held at the Armory club Friday night will close to-night. Names of the contestants who are up on eight registered athletes mailed to E. F. Walsh, 341 Western avenue, Brighton. There will be considerable local interest in the three special bouts which have also been arranged.

* * *

The Armory club has made arrangements for election returns at the entertainment to be held next Tuesday.

* * *

Tommy Murphy has been offered the winner of the Frazier-Powell go and has accepted. Joe Smith made arrangements with Murphy last night and tried Sid Hedor, who will promote the match, to send on the transportations, which will arrive to-day. Murphy and Frazier met for twenty rounds each Friday night.

* * *

To-morrow is the day Johnson will be in New York, and the big fight should be clinched quickly. Welt, both men are in shape this time, come in heavy when talking over terms. Its a cinch that Jeffries is sure enough at Johnson to close him up for good.

* * *

Tommy Burns has been matched to meet Jack Palmer, the English heavyweight, in a ten-round bout at Sydney, Australia, on December 12. Burns is now in Australia, and has been there for some time. Palmer is a comparatively unknown quantity, but is said to be a clever boxer and a hard hitter.

* * *

Jack Johnson, the negro champion, is to be matched with Jim Flynn, the Pittsburg heavyweight, for a ten-round bout in Los Angeles, Cal., on November 28. Flynn is a clever boxer and a hard hitter, and has defeated Sam Langford and Sam McVea. He is also a good drawing card.

* * *

Jack Britton, the welter-weight champion, has been matched to meet Jack Dillon, the middle-weight champion, in a ten-round bout at Indianapolis on November 11. Dillon has been training for the bout for some time, and is in good condition.

BALDWIN TO BOX RILEY AT NATIONAL A. C.

The initial show of the new National A. C., which will promote only the highest kind of boxing, promises to produce some of the best matches ever seen locally. With Matty Baldwin and Willie Riley two of the fastest local lightweights in the main bout there is a card everybody can appreciate, as they know there will be action all the way.

Matchmaker Johnny McGinn, not satisfied with bringing together two of the best in their class for the feature item of the bill, has made a nice selection in the other bouts. Eddie Sheviin, the coming Roxbury slasher, is to face Johnny Burdick, one of the cleverest who ever wore a glove. He has been sparring partner for Terry McGovern and Young Corbett and is the most experienced opponent Sheviin ever met.

THE SORROWS OF THE GREATEST HUMORIST—Imps of misfortune pursue him, but cannot quench his laughter. Read it in the Sunday American.

DELMONT HAS A BIG TASK

The twelve round bout between Albert Delmont of the North End and Freddy O'Brien of Chelsea at the Unity Cycle Club of Lawrence to-morrow night has offered the boxing lovers of Lawrence, Lowell and Haverhill. In fact it promises such a good match that many Boston sports will take the trip to the city on the Merrimac River to see the bout.

O'Brien never was better. He has worked for four months with Matty Baldwin and has developed a punch, as was demonstrated by knocking out Eddie Stanton a few weeks ago.

The contest is sure to be a hummer. O'Brien is fast and clever, a replica of Abe Attell while Delmont is a rugged, hard puncher. They met at Lewiston, Me., about a year ago and as it was a ten round no-decision contest each has been electrified ever since and welcomed this opportunity to settle the score.

There are three good preliminaries on the card with local boys billed. The reservations show that the popular assessments levied have left the fancy of the sporting public in that valley.

Harvard freshmen will play Exeter on Soldier's Field this afternoon at 3 in the third game of their schedule.

The freshmen have won from Groton, 9 to 0, and from Andover, 5 to 0, in their only games so far. Exeter has played six games, winning four and losing to Hotchkiss and Williams, and seems to be as good as any of the secondary schools.

Exeter will not be able to send its strongest team to Cambridge for the game, captain Downing has a mild attack of the grippe and is under treatment at the school infirmary. No chances will be taken with Pearson, who is nursing an injured ankle.

Two sets of backs are likely to be used, Wilson, Whiting and Cornell, Ter Kuile, Schneider and Courtney.

Rich, a former guard and tackle at Harvard, will witness the game and return with the team to Exeter to assist in the coaching for a few days.

DR. O'CONNOR TO COACH GREEN

HANOVER, Oct. 27.—Dr. O'Connor of Boston is expected to report at Dartmouth early next week to assist the other coaches to prepare for the Princeton game on November 9. He will spend much time to developing a good centre, and in Needham, who played such a good game against Amherst, and Bingle, the former basketball player, has two good men to work on.

The coaches will try a new game from now on, and they think that they will have even chances with Harvard when the week comes. Secret practice is being held every afternoon. Ryan, who was injured in the Williams game, returned to practice to-day in fine shape.

WOMAN'S QUEST FOR HAPPINESS

ARTICLE NO. 3.

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

IT is impossible for a womanly woman, possessed of all the feminine traits of character which render her an ornament to home and society, to be happy without a consciousness that she is attractive to men.

Hundreds of good women will deny this assertion, but not one of them, when she sits alone with her own heart, will be able to question its truth.

It is, in fact, the first business of women to please men. Every young girl declares "she hates boys," but she is never more radiantly happy than when surrounded by them.

It is an impulse planted in the soul of every normal woman, and instead of denying and protesting a woman ought to frankly and honestly declare the fact that the society of the opposite sex is agreeable to her, and she ought to make men a study and begin early to fit herself to be companionable to them.

Learn to Listen Well

The very first requisite is to learn to listen well.

When this accomplishment is rare one is added the tact to lead a man to talk of himself, his ideals and ambitions and hopes and aspirations, a very large opportunity is offered a woman for a wide knowledge of humanity at small cost. She is also given an opportunity to help them better their ideals, if she is adroit—not reformatory—in her methods.

Every man likes to talk of himself; and every man likes an attentive listener. A woman who possesses a memory and reasoning powers can study the masculine sex and make herself familiar with most of its weaknesses, its strength, its illogicalness and its opinions, and can fit herself to be companionable to such men as she may choose to select for comrades by remembering what they have talked about, and analyzing their ideas and opinions.

But in order to reach such a result a woman must learn what is most difficult for her, viz., to keep her distinctive self-hood and to speak only of the good and praiseworthy things she finds in men.

She will find much that is not praiseworthy; but the moment she begins to criticise men as individuals or a class she will make herself unpopular, and lose her power of helpfulness.

Women will seek the woman barer out of curiosity, and with a desire to make a difficult conquest. But men are too lazy and too vain to pursue the man hater. Besides they always imagine some man has deceived or jilted a woman if she dislikes the masculine sex as a class; and that, again, makes her unpopular. One of the qualities peculiar to men is the impulse to win the favor of a woman popular with other men, and to avoid the woman other men have not approved.

Woman, on the contrary, possessing the missionary spirit to a large degree, finds a certain happiness in identifying herself with the unpopular man.

But men are more like sheep, and prefer to follow a leader. Therefore, a woman who would be popular with mankind must avoid the things which antagonized and offend.

Men Are Like Sheep

While man has a natural love for beauty in a woman, he will nevertheless, after a brief period of time leave the society of the stupid, dull or quite exciting beauty who sits silent or who chatters incessantly about her own conquests, and will seek for entertainment and distraction elsewhere.

Therefore the woman who, in her pursuit for happiness, hopes to hold her court with an undisputed sway needs to learn what entertains the sterner sex.

Mistakes of Courtship

THE MIDDLE-AGED MARRIED MAN'S STORY

By DOROTHY DIX

"WHEN I was courting my wife," said the bubble-eyed married man the other day, "I conducted it upon the usual specifications made and laid down for such occasion by the novel writers and poets and other guides who are supposed to known the way to a woman's heart.

"I was on the job early and late. I hung around the house until the family had to actually sweep me out with the other rubbish, and then, when I finally tore myself away, I made a break for the nearest telephone so that I could call her up and find out that she was really there, and hadn't spread her angel wings and aeroplaned back to Heaven.

"I blew in my substance on theatre tickets and chocolate creams and long stemmed American Beauties, and I passed long, blissful evenings holding her little white hand and swearing to her that I had never loved before, and could never love again, and inquiring of her: 'Do's ducky is 'oo?'

"The plan worked out all right. I got the lady. She's been mine now for a considerable number of years, and I have been pretty happy and well satisfied with our bargain, and yet when I think of the risks—the bare-brained, foolhardy risks—that I took in tying up for life with a person with whom I was as totally unacquainted as I was with the woman I married, why, it gives me the shivers and the frosted extremities.

The Ordinary Courtship Wrong

"For, in the light of subsequent experiences, I realize that the common or garden variety of courtship, as I practiced it, is all wrong. It's as full of mistakes as an egg is of meat, and it doesn't prepare either party for what is to come.

"When a couple are engaged, there is plenty of time, heaven knows, for them to have read each other's books and the weighty affairs of life, and to find out what each other thinks, and get some line on each other's tastes and habits. But they don't. They confine their attention to the single topic of love, and the result is that, when the average man and a woman face each other after the marriage ceremony, they are to all intents and purposes, absolute strangers.

"As I say, I have pulled off the matrimonial game pretty well. Nevertheless, if I had my courtship to go through with again, I should conduct it on different lines from those which I pursued. For instance, as I sat by the side of my adored Juliet of an evening, I should take her fair white hand in mine and, after discoursing upon its beauty, I should casually remark that 'Pearl' as a pretty name, and inquire if those lily fingers could turn out a neat and workmanlike patch and darn, especially if they could execute a basin of biscuit that would not be a first aid to the coroner. Oh, yes, I should never trust any discretion to any lady who couldn't show a cooking school diploma.

Hand Her a Few Cold Facts

"Then, instead of spending so much time ballooning around in a cloud, painting an impressionistic picture of our future life, in which the cooing of the turtle doves look like the Kilkenny cats, I'd hand her out a few cold facts about myself and our future home, and sort of prepare her for what a measly, grumpy, unreasonable cuss I am, and what it means to keep house in a two by four flat with a crying baby under foot and a piano over you, and trying to straddle a beer income over champagne tastes.

"And while my enrapt Juliet nestled her four pounds of frankfurters against my shoulder, I'd sure try to find out how she stood on the financial question, and whether, in her opinion, a husband was merely a purveyor of imported frocks and millinery, or a side partner to be worked for and worked with.

"And I wouldn't ask her a million times if I were the first she ever loved. I'd inquire if she always got up in time for breakfast, and wore a clean shirt waist, and combed her hair smooth for that meal.

A Few Questions to Ask

"And I should keep my ear to the ground listening for little tips that mean nothing to the lover, but loom up so importantly to the husband. For example, is the lady given to saying 'I told you so,' when mistakes are made? Does she nag, of course—but—er—er—hang on a single string? Does she correct your pronunciation, and want to talk out your problems? And is she disposed to bring you to book every time you speak pleasant to another girl?

"These are some of the points that I should substitute for the old, meaning less, ducky daddiesums of my first courtship, had I the necessity of undergoing the ordeal the second time; and upon the answer I got would depend whether my lady fair me to the altar, or, I shouldn't say, and my name would be Algernon Aspinwall instead of Jones."

"Prince Buttercup reached for his sword, launched forward and made a deft pass"

PRINCE BUTTERCUP lived in a gossamer bower,
Hard by a thistle-down tree.
The Princess Ambrosia abode in a flower
Upon the domains of King Bee.

(I'm not very sure that this story is true,
But as I received it I tell it to you;
The incidents in it were given to me
By a student of nature whose birthdays count three.)

King Bee was a grouchy, despotic old gent,
And also close fisted, no doubt;
For when the poor Princess could not pay her rent
He instantly ordered her out.

(I'm free to affirm that I've verified this;
I went to the flower and looked for the miss;
I peered through the windows and looked all about,
And, I can assure you, the Princess was out.)

Prince Buttercup heard of the maiden's distress
And angrily went to King Bee,
Remarking right rudely: "Who dares dispossess
The Princess will have to fight me!"

(I'll have to admit this sounds rather tall—
I hardly believe that it happened at all.
But I must include it, believe it or not,
For it is a requisite part of the plot.)

This truculent stand on the part of the Prince
Quite took the old potentate's breath,
And when he regained it he threw out dark hints
Of stinging the youngster to death.

(Remember, I only relate what I heard,
Refusing to vouch for a line or a word.
I merely repeat it and leave it to you
To judge for yourself, if it seems to be true.)

Prince Buttercup wrathfully reached for his sword,
Launched forward, and made a deft pass,
And ere you could think it, his liege and his lord
Lay dead on the dew-beaded grass.

(They say that the Prince is now wearing a crown,
And rules with the Princess in Buttercup Town,
And that all of his slaves are the once royal Bees,
But you can believe it or not, as you please.)

Advice to the Lovelorn---By Beatrice Fairfax

DON'T BE A FOOLISH GIRL

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been going with a young man for almost two years. I had a dispute with him because his brother is going to be married some time next month, and he has been asked to be best man. I said it was not right that they should ask him to stand up for them and not ask me. And which would be proper to take, the bridesmaid he stands up with or me, into supper? By helping me out you will greatly oblige. LILLIE.

MY dear, I think you are acting in a very foolish manner. It is quite natural that your friend should be best man for his brother, but why should you be a bridesmaid unless you are one of the bride's greatest friends? Be a wise girl, enter into the spirit of the wedding, and do not show jealousy. It will do you no good and will only make them all dislike you. The best man should take the bridesmaid in to supper. Give him up for once and do it gracefully, without showing any petty jealousy.

WOULD NOT DO

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

There is a young lady living across the street from me to whom I have never been introduced. I see her many times a day, and have taken a friendly liking to her. As I have heard that her birthday is to be next week, could I, in a spirit of friendship, send a calendar, or a pretty little picture, or some such trifle. I have no desire to strike up an acquaintance, but merely to show a friendly, romantic interest. C. C. H.

NO, I am afraid that you cannot do as you suggest. Your action might be looked upon as a great liberty. As you are not anxious to meet her, you certainly cannot care very much about sending her a gift of any kind. As she lives so near it would not be hard to find a mutual acquaintance if you are so anxious to meet her.

BETTER NOT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I met a young man some two weeks ago. He took me home. Shortly after I had several friends of his, including himself, and a few friends of mine up to my house, where they spent a pleasant evening. Upon leaving, in the presence of my mother, he promised to call me up the next day. He did not do so, and as he and his friends took my friends home, I thought perhaps one of them offended him, as I know they did not like him, so in this case do you think it would be proper for me to call him up and see what the trouble is, as I have heard from neither of the persons since? ANXIOUS.

I WOULD not call him up if I were you. He failed to keep his promise, and it is not your place to make the first overture.

SMILES

"Why does he go about in that dejected manner? Has fortune failed him?"

"No; he bought an automobile, and now he can't persuade any of his enemies to take a ride in it."

* * *

"Why don't you tell people you was wit' Cook or Peary?" inquired the town nut.

"I git enough abuse as it is," replied the wondering one.

A lady physical scientist, who, unfortunately, was rather stout, was one night lecturing on physical culture, and in describing to her audience the beauty of a symmetrical figure, went on to say that the proper proportions of the body should be as follows:

"Twice round my finger, once round my wrist; twice around my wrist, once round my neck; twice round my neck, once round my waist."

Voice from the back: "Twice round your wrist, mum, once round Central Park!"

A Romance of Buttercup Town

Poem by James J. Montague—Illustration by Nell Brinkley

"Prince Buttercup reached for his sword, launched forward and made a deft pass"

PRINCE BUTTERCUP lived in a gossamer bower,
Hard by a thistle-down tree.
The Princess Ambrosia abode in a flower
Upon the domains of King Bee.

(I'm not very sure that this story is true,
But as I received it I tell it to you;
The incidents in it were given to me
By a student of nature whose birthdays count three.)

King Bee was a grouchy, despotic old gent,
And also close fisted, no doubt;
For when the poor Princess could not pay her rent
He instantly ordered her out.

(I'm free to affirm that I've verified this;
I went to the flower and looked for the miss;
I peered through the windows and looked all about,
And, I can assure you, the Princess was out.)

Prince Buttercup heard of the maiden's distress
And angrily went to King Bee,
Remarking right rudely: "Who dares dispossess
The Princess will have to fight me!"

(I'll have to admit this sounds rather tall—
I hardly believe that it happened at all.
But I must include it, believe it or not,
For it is a requisite part of the plot.)

This truculent stand on the part of the Prince
Quite took the old potentate's breath,
And when he regained it he threw out dark hints
Of stinging the youngster to death.

(Remember, I only relate what I heard,
Refusing to vouch for a line or a word.
I merely repeat it and leave it to you
To judge for yourself, if it seems to be true.)

Prince Buttercup wrathfully reached for his sword,
Launched forward, and made a deft pass,
And ere you could think it, his liege and his lord
Lay dead on the dew-beaded grass.

(They say that the Prince is now wearing a crown,
And rules with the Princess in Buttercup Town,
And that all of his slaves are the once royal Bees,
But you can believe it or not, as you please.)

Through the Wall

CHAPTER IX—(Continued)

THE message was preposterous, the manner of its delivery fantastic; yet there was something vaguely formidable in the stranger's tone, as if a great person had spoken—one absolutely sure of himself and of his power to command.

"Naturally," retorted Coquenil.

"Why do you say 'naturally'?

"It's natural for a criminal to wish that an officer of police could cease. Tell your friend or employer that I am only mildly interested in his wishes.

He spoke with assumed hostility, but the dark-bearded man answered, quite unruffled: "Ah, I may be able to heighten your interest.

"Come, come, sir; my time is valuable."

The stranger drew from his coat pocket a large, thick envelope fastened with an elastic band, and handed it to the detective.

"Whatever your time is worth, sir," he said in a rasping voice, "I will pay for it. Please look at this."

Coquenil's curiosity was stirred. Here was no commonplace encounter; at least it was a departure from ordinary criminal methods.

Who was this supercilious man?

How dared he come on such an errand to him, Paul Coquenil?

What desperate purpose lurked behind his self-confident mask? Could it be that he knew the assassin or—was he the assassin?

Wondering thus, M. Paul opened the tendered envelope and saw that it contained a bundle of thousand franc notes.

"There are a large sum here," he remarked.

"Fifty thousand francs. It's for you; and as much more will be handed you the day you will for Brazil. Just a moment; let me finish.

"The sum is a bonus in addition to the salary already fixed. And, remember, you have a life-long pension there with a brilliant chance of fame. That is what you care about, I take it—fame. It is for fame you want to follow up this crime."

A Direct Defiance

Coquenil snapped his fingers. "I don't care that for fame; I'm going to work out this case for the sheer joy of doing it."

"You will never work out this case." The man spoke so strong and with such a menacing ring in his voice that M. Paul felt a chill of apprehension.

"Why not?" he asked.

"Because you will not be allowed to; it's doubtful if you could work it out; but there's a chance that you could, and we don't propose to take that chance. You're a free agent; you can persist in this course; but if you do—"

He paused as if to check too vehement an utterance, and M. Paul caught a threatening gleam in his eyes that he long remembered.

"Why?"

"If you do you will be thwarted at every turn. You will be made to suffer in ways you do not dream of, through those who are dear to you, through your dog, through your mother—"

"You dare!" cried Coquenil.

"We dare anything," flashed the stranger. "I'm daring something now, am I not? Don't you suppose I know what you are thinking? Well, I take the risk, because—because you are intelligent."

There was something almost captivating in the very arrogance and recklessness of this audacious stranger. Never in all his experience had Coquenil known a criminal or a person directly associated with crime, as this man must be, to boldly confront the powers of justice. Undoubtedly the fellow realized his danger, yet he deliberately faced it.

What plan could he have for getting away, once his message was delivered? It must be nearly delivered already. There was nothing more to say, he had offered a bribe and made a threat. A few words now for the answer, the refusal, the dismissal—and then what?

Surely this brusque individual did not imagine that he, Coquenil, would be simple enough to let him go, now that he had him in his power. But wait! Was he sure of that? Was the man in his power?

A Hopeless Struggle

As if answering the thought the stranger said: "It is hopeless for you to struggle against our knowledge and our resources—utterly hopeless. We have, for example, the fullest information about you and your life, down to the smallest detail."

"Yes," answered Coquenil, and a twinkle of humor shone in his eyes. "What's the name of my old servant?"

Melanie."

"What's the name of the canary bird I gave her last week?"

"It isn't a canary bird; it's a bullfinch, and it's name is Peter."

"Not bad, not at all bad," muttered the other, and the twinkle in his eyes faded.

"We know the important things, too, all that concerns you, from your forced resignation two years ago down to your talk yesterday with the girl at Rue Dame."

"So how can you fight me?" How can you shadow people who shadow you—who watch your actions from day to day, from hour to hour—who know exactly the moment when you are weak and unprepared, as I know now that you are unarmed because you left that pistol with Papa Tignol."

For a moment Coquenil was silent, and then: "Here's your money," he said, returning the envelope.

"Then you refuse?"

"I refuse."

"Stubborn fellow! Ass, unbelieving! You dream of my power against you. Come, I will give you a glimpse of it, just the briefest glimpse. Suppose you try to arrest me. You have seen me talking of it, now not.

"I'm a suspicious character, I ought to be investigated. Well, do your duty. I might point out that such an arrest would accomplish absolutely nothing, for you lacked the slightest evidence against me and can get none; but I waive that point, because I want to show you that, even in so simple an effort against us as this, you would inevitably fail."

The man's impudence was passing all bounds. "You mean that I cannot arrest you?" menaced Coquenil.

"You Cannot Arrest Me!"

"Precisely. I mean that with all your cleverness and with a distinct advantage in position, here on the Champs Elysees, with policemen all about us, you cannot arrest me."

"We'll see about that," answered M. Paul, a grim purpose showing in his deep-set eyes.

"I say this in no spirit of bravado, continued the other with irritating insolence, "but so that you may remember my words and this warning when I am gone.

"There is a final ring of defiance!

"This is the first time you have seen me, M. Coquenil, and you will probably never see me again, but you will hear from me. Now blow your whistle!"

Coquenil was puzzled. If this was a bluff it was the maddest, most incomprehensible bluff that a criminal ever made. For a hidden purpose here? Could there be a hinted purpose here? Was the man deliberately making some subtle move in the game he was playing?

The detective paused to think. They had come down the Champs Elysees, past the Arcenals, and were nearing the Rond Point, the best guarded part of Paris, where the swift summons of his police call would be answered almost instantly. And yet he hesitated.

"There is no hurry, I suppose," said the detective. "I'd like to ask a question or two."

"As many as you please."

With all the strength of his mind and memory Coquenil was studying his adversary. Was that beard? Could it be false? And the swarthy tone of the skin which he noticed now in the improving light was that natural? If not natural, then wonderfully imitated.

And the hands, the arms? He had watched these from the first, noting every movement, particularly the left hand and the left arm, but he had detected nothing significant. The man used his hands like any one else. He carried a cane in the right hand, lifted his hat with the right hand, offered the envelope with the right hand. There was nothing to show that he was not a right-handed man.

"I wonder if you have anything against me personally?" M. Paul.

A Decisive Moment

"On the contrary," declared the other, "we admire you and wish you well."

"But you threaten my mother?"

"If necessary, yes."

"And my dog?"

"If necessary."

What plan could he have for getting away, once his message was delivered? It must be nearly delivered already. There was nothing more to say, he had offered a bribe and made a threat. A few words now for the answer, the refusal, the dismissal—and then what?

Society Buds Kept Busy Arranging for Various Hallowe'en Festivals

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

Hallowe'en, with its alluring list of smart week-end house parties, innumerable dances, dinners and other jollifications, is so close at hand that prospective hosts and hostesses are in a flurry of excitement over the preparations for this, the gayest and most royally reckless of all the year's good times, for the night of witches, black cats and burning punkokins is to mean more to society this year than ever before.

Already guests are starting on their way for the country house-party, where is anticipation of the night's revelries they are to immediately get busy carving pumpkins, building the brush heap for the fire, and getting in line with all the most original and unique ideas for the festival of witches.

The distinguished, who are just now so popular, and themselves in a most perplexing position. They have been chaperoned with distinction, and which of late to accept is the burning question with them now.

"Where are you going?" I hear them constantly asking each other. "Why, I'm going to Mrs. S——'s, come on; won't you be jolted time every? I think I should accept Mrs. B——'s invitation. In fact, I don't know what to do!" and so they keep it up; but as so many of the festivities are to be impromptu affairs they keep on ordering their costumes while still in the process of deciding.

Anyway, before the next couple of days have passed they will all have settled their little notes of acceptance, and be ready to run off for the week-end to join the merry-makers already on the scene of action.

One of the most important of the Hallowe'en affairs will be the Hunter's Moon ball, to be given by Mrs. Horatio Nelson Slater at her old English, style, all the beautiful Readville estate, "Pinebank," to which have already been issued some of the most part, accepted, so that the affair will be large and brilliant as could be desired.

Mrs. Slater has one of the largest ball rooms in the country, while the large library will be cleared and the space also utilized. Following the dancing, which will conclude at midnight, supper will be served and then the witches turned loose.

Miss Adelaide Jackson, president; Miss Molly Tufts, Miss Ruth Fuller, Miss Ethel Chandler, Miss Helen Chandler, Miss Josephine Dorr, Miss Katherine Andrews, Miss Charlotte Allen, Miss Mary Pierce, Miss Frances Porter, Miss Grace Sturgis and Miss Margaret DeWolf are the Vincent Club girls who are ushers at the concert to be given in Symphony Hall this afternoon in aid of the Women's Charity Club Hospital.

Many friends of Tom Greater Boston, Springfield and Worcester will attend the wedding of his sister, Miss Dorothy Lee Marriner, daughter of Mrs. Edward Mayhew of Auburn, to Dr. Ralph Lee Rice, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rice of Springfield, the ceremony will take place at Grace Church, and a reception at the home of the bride will follow the ceremony. After their wedding trip Dr. and Mrs. Rice will make their home in Springfield.

One of this week's interesting engagements is that of Miss Constance Grant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Grant, Jr., of Concord, to Francis Hathaway Keith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Waterston Keith.

William Foster Apthorp and the North Shore and Henry Howard Griffin of Milton are two more society men who have gone Town, South Africa. They are making tour of the world, and have recently called on Australia.

Mr. and Mrs. Landes Tuttle of Cincinnati, wealthy people, who will be remembered with their first Summer at Magnolia that they have already leased a cottage there for next Summer. They will motor to the Dakin place again.

All the colony contingent of Newport will be present this evening at the Miantonomah Club, when Theodore F. Davis of New York, the Egyptian explorer, will speak on his researches and discoveries in the Egyptian tombs and caves. Mr. Davis belongs to the colony at Newport and has a cottage on Bateman's Point.

General Horace Porter of this city has been a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid D. Sloane at their Lenox estate this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Nelson Page, who were so prominent in the Summer colonies of several Summer resorts this past season, are now in New York, and are stopping at the St. Regis before returning to Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. John I. Taylor of this city have gone to New York this week for a short visit, and are stopping at the Gotham school. Other Bostonians who are in New York this week are C. N. Tyler and R. T. Lee.

Mr. and Mrs. Thaddeus Coffin Beebe, of Harvard avenue, Allston, will make their home this Winter in Brookline.

Dr. and Mrs. Morton Prince of Beacon street are returning from Europe to-day, after spending some time in Switzerland and Paris. Their son, Morton Prince, Jr., is remaining in Germany for the winter to study.

Mr. Prince was graduated from Harvard University last June.

Mrs. David Hunt, Miss Hunt, Miss A. A. Beasley and Mr. and Mrs. Young are among the Bostonians who are visiting in New York this week.

A deserving entertainment for charity will be given in Haynes Hall at the Franklin Square House, East Newton street, Boston, Tuesday evening, November 5, at 8 o'clock, under the auspices of the Tuesday Morning Fortnightly Club of the Franklin. The entire proceeds are to be given to the Mount Pleasant Home for Aged Men and Women at No. 59 Elm Hill avenue, Roxbury. The first part of the program will be musical, in which will appear well-known musicians of Boston. This will be followed by a play entitled "Dodging Benedictine," of which Mrs. Alice F. Bates, president of the Fortnightly Club, is the author. The play represents a scene in the Red Lion Inn, London, in 1852. One of the principal characters will be taken by Mrs. George A. Hibbard.

At a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Rothenberg at their Summer home at Swampscott, Sunday last, the engagement of their only daughter, Pauula, to Samuel Ruf of Brookline, was announced.

Mrs. J. Bertram Williams of Cambridge has entertained her sister, Mrs. Michael Foster, of London, England. Mrs. Foster's daughter, Miss Virginia Russell, and her step-daughter, Miss Foster, are also guests of Mrs. Williams.

Mrs. Frank Everett Peabody of Commonwealth avenue, Brighton, is at home to-day, she will present her daughter, Miss Amy Peabody, on the afternoon of November 17.

The British Ambassador, James Bryce, and Mrs. Bryce, are at the embassy on Connecticut avenue in Washington this week. They are now concluding their visits among North Shore friends, after having made the Summer at Northeast Harbor in Maine.

Miss Edith Wetmore, daughter of Senator William Wetmore, was married last Saturday at Newport to Charles Lander Wolf.

Charles Lanier Lamb has closed his Summer residence, "Alden Wissen," in Lenox for the season, after the family has been in which he is a large exhibitor, and which closes to-morrow afternoon.

A profusion of beautiful flowers from all the great conservatories of Lenox and vicinity filled the town hall, where the show attracted society people in the Berkshires. The aggregate value of cut and pot flowers is estimated at $10,000. It was the seventh annual exhibition of the Horticultural Society. Among those attending the show were Dr. and Mrs. Richard Pitcairn, Ogontz; Mrs. Heloise Meyer, Miss Gertrude Parsons, Miss Helen Alexander, Mrs. Alfred Cary, Mr. and Mrs. Girard Foster, Mr. and Mrs. William G. Saunie, Mrs. Robert Winthrop, Mrs. William Johnson and Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt.

Colonel Francis L. Hutchins of this city gave a driving party yesterday afternoon at Harding Springs. Colonel Hutchins was one of the guests at a luncheon which Miss Anna Sands gave early in the afternoon at the old Colonial Hotel.

Miss Katherine Fay was with Miss Gladys Ingalls and Miss Anna Sands at one of the fashionable dances at Virginia Hot Springs yesterday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Austen Gray have left Newport, and have gone to New York for the Winter. They are already negotiating for a cottage at Newport as they have decided to spend next Summer there.

Miss Dorothy Decker's wedding breakfast will be given by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wigglesworth at Green Acre, Dover, after her marriage to David Osborne on Saturday.

The house in Washington occupied last year by Mrs. John C. Phillips and Miss Phillips and William Phillips is to be occupied this Winter by its owner, Mrs. Maitland W. Sugg. Mrs. Phillips has leased her own house in Boston and while she and her daughter will go to England next month, to be with William Phillips, who has recently been appointed first secretary of the United States Embassy in London.

Mrs. H. Stanley Potter of Commonwealth avenue has issued cards announcing Mrs. Alice Thorne, wife of Major Hawthorne of the United States Coast Survey, for the past ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Wolcott have returned to their home in Milton, after spending the Autumn on the Pacific coast. They have been gone since September.

IN SYMPATHY.

THE two men had met at a dinner party, and were talking in a corner by themselves.

"You see that tall woman with the sharp nose and the critical eye?" asked one of them.

"Yes," said the other quietly.

"Well, I've been watching her for quite a while. She's always got her nose into somebody's business. She's the last woman I'd marry."

"Which shows how strangely in sympathy we are," said the other with true sentiment. "She's the last woman I did marry."

NOT FOND OF IT

"But we are slack ourselves. It I found you anything to do it would be taking work from our own men."

"The little I should do wouldn't harm nobody, boss."

As the Twig Is Bent

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

If you want to abolish the horrors of war, take the leaden soldier out of the nursery.—Publisher Gun.

WHEN Tommy was but four years old 'twas his delight to play
With little leaden soldier men for hours every day.
We might have known, from reading Pope, that thus his youthful mind
Toward war and blood and butchery would surely be inclined.
But in our stupid ignorance we blindly let him play,
And now he is a Colonel in the U. S. A.

When Willie was of tender years, a little bank he had,
In which he stowed the coppers that he sweated out of dad.

'Twas wrong to let him do this thing, a fact we should have known.
But we gave little thought to him and let him quite alone.
But one an honester answer we found the time to plan.
Our darling little Willie was a Wall Street man.

The worst of this is still to come. When Freddie was a child,
A little racky poodle dog his leisure time beguiled.
We thought it beautiful to see him drag the dog about
And call it soft, endearing names, and pat its woolly snout.
But presently the change appeared, we never found out how.
But our dear little Freddie is a drehshund now!

The Quiet Girl Won A Short Story

THE young man with the cold wax expression let go of it.

"I've made up my mind," he said.

"That I dislike intensely any person who would look for having a cheerful disposition and a way of making the best of things."

"Give me a good, downright, growler or kicker every time! Even if nothing fault could really help anything. It relieves one's feelings so beautifully that the effect is almost the same.

"I'm going to the farmers' mid-winter ball at the Town Hall to-night. I went to one three days ago. I don't know why it is that the minute a family gets a dozen miles out into the country it seems to lose its sociability, or to from any household spot some subtle poison is instilled into the otherwise civilized hearts of its members, some spirit of taking it out on the whole human race. But they can't rest until they've hired a lot of innocent folks away from their perfectly good steam radiators and pink cots to turn out into the wilderness to share their misery.

"Of course everybody takes an invitation for the sweetest kind of a compliment. It's just a delightful desire to be friendly, and have afternoon tea in a great hall, that's what it is. I didn't care for tea; it was a cold day, I didn't want to walk to the station, I don't mind mentioning that I like to, and this time, but I thought I'd like to, and this seemed my chance. There was somebody I knew, Mrs. Mix, but they didn't call for me. So you know, some really bright fellow one of these days is going to get a conception of the Horticultural Society and Mrs. Richard Pitcairn, Ogontz; Mrs. Heloise Meyer, Miss Gertrude Parsons, Miss Helen Alexander, Mrs. Alfred Cary, Mr. and Mrs. Girard Foster, Mr. and Mrs. William G. The Mission Wall clock is fitted with an eight-day movement and cathedral gong. It is finished in weathered oak, seasoned by the elements. It is a timely, friendly article in design and built useful and practical in any home, office or place of business.

The AMERICAN special clock is not for sale by dealers or at stores on account of the exclusive contract made by the BOSTON AMERICAN with the manufacturers. Thirty household premium coupons clipped from thirty AMERICANS of consecutive dates will, with a payment of $1.95, entitle the holder to one of these clocks, when presented to the Premium Department of the BOSTON AMERICAN. The payment will be $2.25 when the clock is to be delivered by wagon or express.

The Very Latest.

The Venetian Art Lamp is the newest creation in lamps and, like the clock, is manufactured exclusively for the BOSTON AMERICAN. It is fitted either for gas or electricity, the pedestal is antique in construction and finish, it is reproduced from an old Venetian design with the latest treatment of Pompeiian green.

The shade is produced from exclusive design, elaborately decorated with an embossed floral design of coral red poppies, surrounded by green foliage, having a deep red background. When illuminated the effect is most exquisite. Thirty consecutive coupons and $2.50 entitle the holder to one of these artistic creations when presented at the Premium Department of the BOSTON AMERICAN, or thirty consecutive coupons and $3 when delivered by wagon or express.

If you have not already started saving coupons, start to-day, to-morrow, or next week. These coupons appear daily and Sunday in The BOSTON AMERICAN. Cut one out. It will pay you well. No two coupons of the same date will be accepted in any one set.

Electric Fans and Bacteria

THAT the use of revolving fans encourages the growth of bacteria by increasing the movement of bacteria in the air though by what means we are not told, although we were informed in France, according to the London Hospital, late this paper:

"The use of ventilators with revolving fans has become very common in large public buildings, especially restaurants and shops. In most cases these ventilators communicate with the outside, and they are intended, of course, with the idea of ventilating and purifying the air within by increasing the rate of exchange with the external atmosphere. But recently fans are being frequently used, especially in hot weather, simply to produce a cooling effect by setting in a current of air inside. Prof. Hankin and A. Ellassier have examined the microbiological effects of these fans and ventilators upon the atmosphere within, and have communicated their results to a recent meeting of the Societe Biologie.

"They find that these appliances enormously increase the bacterial contents of the air. Their experiments were numerous and varied, but it will suffice to refer to two or three.

"Thus in a restaurant of 600 cubic meters analysis of the air before the fan was working showed 12,500 bacteria per cubic meter, after working the fan for one hour 23,000 bacteria, and after two hours 45,000 bacteria.

"In another cafe of 600 cubic meters the number of bacteria rose from 12,000 to 30,000 after the fan was working for one hour.

"In every instance, in fact, the number of bacteria per cubic meter was doubled, or even quadrupled.

"As the author points out, with these facts such appliances cannot but be regarded as dangerous and detrimental to the public health."

Secret Thoughts

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

I BOLD it true that thoughts are things
Endowed with bodies, breath and wings,
And that we send them forth to fill
The world with good results or ill.

That which we call our secret thought
Speeds on its way to work out naught
But leaves its impress on the woes
Like tracks behind it as it goes.

It is finds fate. Remember it
Your mind's chamber as you sit
With thoughts you would not dare have Known,
And take comrades when alone.

These thoughts have life, and they will fly
And leave their impress by and by
On human minds—become a blessed breath
Breathed into homes its fevered death

And after you have quite forgot
Or all outgrown some vanished thought,
Back to your mind, to make its home,
A duty, or curse, it will come.

Then let your secret thoughts be fair;
They have a vital part and share
In shaping worlds and moulding fate,
God's system is so intricate.

How to Save Half On Milk

You are paying your milkman twice what you'd pay for Van Camp's. You even pay more by the quart. Then think of the waste—the milk that sours—the milk you use up to save. For you rarely get just milk enough.

You are paying more for impure milk than you would pay for pure.

That half-milk you use in your cooking costs more than rich Holstein milk.

You can have a cow in your kitchen for less than you pay toward the keep of your milkman's cow.

If Van Camp's cost twice as much as raw milk it would still be essential. There is nothing more vital than getting pure milk.

But when Van Camp's costs half as much, for what possible reason can one cling to raw milk?

Let us discuss the facts.

Surprisingly Rich

You'll be surprised at the richness and flavor which Van Camp's gives to a milk dish.

You'll wonder what we have added to make it so good.

But we add nothing at all.

The difference is this: You were cooking before with half-milk. For milkman's milk separates, before and after you get it.

The butter fat rises and the solids fall. So you never get the whole, rich milk.

In Van Camp's you do. You'll never again be content with half-milk when you once cook with Van Camp's.

Not Altered

Van Camp's is simply rich Holstein milk, with two-thirds the water evaporated. Nothing whatever is added. Nothing is subtracted, save water.

It's not a peculiar milk.

It is taken fresh from the cow and evaporated, close to our numerous dairies.

It is sterilized after the can is sealed. So it comes to you as fresh as it leaves us.

The slight almond flavor—apparent only when one drinks the milk cold—is due to sterilization.

For cooking or coffee, Van Camp's tastes exactly the same as raw milk or cream, save for additional richness.

It's Economical

Van Camp's is as thick as thick cream—so thick that you add one part water for coffee. Yet it doesn't cost half what you pay your milkman for cream.

Add two parts water and you have rich milk. The cost of such milk, when you buy Van Camp's by the case, is about six cents per quart.

Then you have no waste—no milk left over. For Van Camp's means a cow in your kitchen.

One often spends for Van Camp's Milk about half what she paid the milkman.

Think of buying milk from hand to mouth—buying a half-milk laden with germs—and paying more than one pays for Van Camp's.

Free From Germs

Van Camp's is perfectly sterile.

We milk no tubercular cows. We employ no sickly milkmen.

Our dairies are sanitary. Our creameries, where the milk is evaporated, are built without wood. We make a business of cleanliness.

We employ every means known to science to guard our milk from infection.

Then the milk is pasteurized.

Every drop of raw milk contains a myriad of germs. And those germs are humanity's most terrible foes.

Van Camp's contains none at all. It is safe.

A Warning

Van Camp's is not like a condensed milk, which is half sugar. Ours is nothing but milk.

Analysis of Van Camp's shows about 8 per cent of butter fat. That is because we use very rich milk and evaporate two-thirds of the water.

But one may take out much less of the water and still have "evaporated" milk.

So there is need to be careful. Don't think that all milks are alike. Van Camp's costs no more than many brands which cannot begin to compare with it.

You will get the utmost in milk if you insist on Van Camp's.

Van Camp's Milk comes in 5 and 10-cent cans, at your grocer's. It is put up at our dairies, in five states, where we milk 20,000 Holstein cows.

STATE STREET NEWS OF INTEREST TO INVESTORS

The monetary situation will render for a part the market. Anybody with Steel to sell will be permitted to sell it, and the market will be permitted to find proof of whatever level it happens to come to rest. If Steel declines, the whole market likewise will go down with it, especially as there is nothing particularly good on which to buy stocks at the moment in view of the foreign situation. Pennsylvania seems to furnish the only strong picture in the whole list.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

STOCKS SELL OFF A POINT

COPPER STOCK MARKET DULL

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Following a strong opening in Wall Street to-day stocks sold off about a point on the best figures, under leadership of Steel. The selling of Steel was due to the fact that the monthly statement of net earnings and unfilled orders did not come up to the expectations. Wall Street had been led to believe that the net earnings would show about $40,000,000, whereas the figure was only $38,246,987, the difference aggregating about 6,000,000 tons, as was expected to be announced. Unfilled orders on the books proved to be only 4,766,833 tons.

At the end of the first half-hour prices were at the lowest point of the day, with extremely dull. American shares were heavy during the early part of the session in London, but later improved under the influence of buying orders.

On the New York Curb business was dull and prices were not materially changed. Chicago Subway was strong at 11.

EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN BOSTON OCTOBER 27, 1909

BOSTONAMERICAN

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, OCTOBER 27, 1909

The Income Tax a Just Tax

The Boston American is in favor of and urges the passage of a Constitutional amendment providing for a national tax upon personal incomes for these reasons:

Because, the income tax is absolutely fair in its method of administering taxation for both the rich and poor, is in no sense a class tax, and cannot be said to be levied on the pockets of the rich alone.

Because, it will close up the loopholes of privilege or connivance found in the present unequal laws of taxation and taken advantage of in the great majority of instances by those who have acquired vast sums of money.

Because, it will compel those who, for the sake of escaping taxation, have invested their money in interest paying bonds of nation, State or municipality, or foreign investment, to pay their just proportion for the maintenance of the country in which they live and which affords them protection.

Because, as a money producer for the expenses of the government it is better than a high protective tariff, incomparably fairer, and more logical.

Mr. John Williams Is Puzzled

He Wants to Know About Plan 1 and Plan 2

Here is a letter from one of our readers:

Editor Boston American:

Will you tell me in a few words just what Plan 1 and Plan 2 call for? I have read a lot of literature about both plans and as a result I confess I am bewildered. I haven't a clear, definite idea in my mind as to what each plan calls for. Maybe other voters at the coming election feel the same way I do about it. Will you help us?

Very truly yours.

Bowdoin street, Dorchester. JOHN WILLIAMS.

Yes, Mr. John Williams, we know how you feel, and there are hundreds like you. TOO MUCH has been written about Plan 1 and Plan 2. Let us try to briefly summarize and give an idea of just what each plan calls for.

PLAN ONE. Under this plan Boston will still have strict party elections. The Mayor will be nominated in party conventions. The City Council will consist of but ONE chamber instead of the present Board of Aldermen and Common Council. There will be thirty-six members in this City Council, one from each ward, excepting that Wards 20 and 24 will have two members and the city at large will be represented by nine members.

PLAN TWO. This is a radical change from the present city government. Any person securing 5,000 signatures to a petition may become a candidate for Mayor. No party designations will appear on the ballot. The City Council will consist of but ONE chamber of nine members, all elected at large for three years, and nominated by petition of 5,000 voters. The Mayor will be elected for four years, may be recalled at the end of two years by petition of not less than a MAJORITY of the registered voters of the city of Boston.

The State election takes place next Tuesday, November 2. One of these plans will be adopted. Mayor Hibbard and the officers of the present administration hold office until the first Monday in February, when the new Mayor and the Councilmen elected at the city election on January 11 will take office and start the government of the city under the new charter, and under the plan voted for by a majority of the voters at the coming State election.

The Finance Commission will continue to be the legally established advisors of the city government of Boston no matter which plan is adopted.

Under the new charter it is made a criminal offence for a member of the city government to participate in the profits of any city contract, and heads of departments must be approved by the Civil Service Commission before their appointments by the new Mayor are valid.

Is Not Life Long Enough?

Human beings ought not to die before they are 150 years old, says a Yale professor, and they will last that long some day. But there is hardly any use in hoping to live until then, for the present average duration of life is only thirty-eight years. At the rate of increase during the past three centuries, about seventeen million years will pass before humanity reaches the point where it will not have to think of the undertaker until it has doubled the psalmist's three-score years and ten.

By the end of that time conditions of life may be so much improved that men and women will look forward to a long life with pleasure. But, as matters now stand, it is doubtful whether many of us would care to know for a certainty that we were to linger on earth for a century and a half.

Human life at present is as truly a burden for most living creatures as the prophet said. Only a few of us have the things that make existence joyous. The vast majority, bent under their heavy tasks and suffering continually from anxiety, know almost nothing of happiness.

Yale professors would do more service if, instead of speculating on such topics, they devoted their time to efforts toward making human life better endurable under its present limits.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

MIND TELEPATHY.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

In answer to Professor Munsterberg's article that mind telepathy does not exist, will say that it may be well for the Professor to prove his beliefs before giving them utterance. The world is too much led by beliefs instead of knowledge. If professors taught and wrote more of what they know instead of what they believe, we would have more practical and less theoretical education. The world is crying out for knowledge, and not beliefs. Belief is only knowledge until proven, and very few there are that investigate sufficiently to gain knowledge. Old Doctor Sewell was a good man, but he furnished Hon. John Quincy Adams with arguments to prove the falsehood of phrenology. The few investigators put me in mind of the fisherman that took a feather and put it on a stone and laid his head on it, and declared feathers a failure.

Telepathy has been proven beyond doubt in England. HENRY J. KENDLE.

THE NEW PENNY

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

In the article, "Justice to Indian," to "Citizen," printed in your paper, he says: "About the only thing the Indian had left was the emblem of their head on the penny, to which they could refer with pride, and which would remind posterity that this great country once belonged to them."

Apropos to this I have read that the design is not an Indian's head, but his feathered head dress placed upon an American child's head. The story reads like this: "The government having decided to change the former style of design on pennies were looking about for a "subject." A party of Indians visited the mint one day and the chief, taking off his feathered head dress, placed it upon the head of the superintendent's little girl, who was standing near him. The action and the picturesqueness impressed the child's father at once, and, making the remark that 'it was just the design for the new penny,' he had the child photographed in its strange head gear, and, much to the delight of both Indian and child, to say nothing of the father, the design has been in use up to the present time."

Being an American from "way back," I, too, should be glad to see the old design put back on our pennies.

LONDON'S "NO TIP" HOTEL

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I noticed an article in a newspaper a few days ago headed "No Tip Hotel, London," stating how all Americans and tourists were flocking there. Please allow me to state not all Americans nor all tourists from other parts are doing so. The people who are patronizing the no tip hotel are people whom the other hotels are glad to get rid of, so-called "cheap" or the "get rich quick" kind.

The First Temples

Especially Written for the American

By ELBERT HUBBARD

THERE is an honest farmer in East Aurora who has over ten thousand dollars in the bank.

Not all the farmers in East Aurora have ten thousand dollars in the bank.

In fact, this is the only farmer in New York State, of whom I know, who has ten thousand dollars in the bank. This man placed the money there thirty years ago, the funds being secured, mostly, from the sale of logs and lumber that he sold off from his broad acres.

This farmer, and his father before him, owned a very large tract of pine forest, and they cut the timber off all of it, except ten acres that covered the shores of a beautiful little lake, near the village.

Fell for $200

This pine grove was the only bit of primeval pine forest left in this part of the country. It was as charming a piece of the handiwork of God as one ever saw.

To walk out there on a Summer's day, recline on the soft pine needles, watch the gently swaying branches overhead, breathe the aromatic odor of the pines and listen to the lullaby of the breeze was a blessing and a benediction.

You felt glad you were alive, and your heart was lifted in a prayer of thankfulness.

But the folks got to using this grove as a picnic ground.

Lovers lingered there.

Family parties took their supper in baskets, almost every Summer day, and played and laughed and sang among the trees.

The children waded in the little lake and threw pebbles in the water.

The man who owned the land didn't like the way folks used his grove, and he bought a bulldog and put up a sign, "No Trespassing on Penalty of the Law."

One day a man came along and said to the honest farmer who owned the grove, "Them 'ere pine trees is about right to cut, and I'll give you two hundred dollars cash for 'em as they stand. It's now or never, take it or leave it."

Now, the farmer had ten thousand dollars in the bank, he was owing no money, he owned six hundred acres of land that brought him all the income he needed, but the offer of two hundred cash was more than he could stand.

He sold the beautiful pine trees, the last of their race.

And the man who had bought them moved in his portable saw mill and cut them down.

And no one ever wanted to go there after that. For there were only the big stumps, the piles of brush, the sawdust and the lumber. The bulldog was out of a job, being no longer needed to keep the children and the folks away.

What Ali Baba Said

The logs were sawed up and the lumber placed in piles ready to ship.

It was in the Autumn, and everything was very dry. And God caused the winds to blow and tumble-weeds rolled in big piles up against the lumber, and in some mysterious way fire came, and in a single night all that lumber was reduced to ashes that is to say, burned.

Now the rogue who owned the portable saw mill had not paid the honest farmer, claiming he could not pay until he got his money for the lumber.

And, the lumber being burned, the saw mill man vamoosed and the farmer got no money.

And, behold, one Ali Baba, a blasphemous man with chin whiskers, who lives in East Aurora, when he heard that lumber was burned said, "I'm damn glad of it."

As for myself, I never swear, but when Ali Baba made that remark I simply added, "So am I."

To-day there quivers and quavers about the streets of this village that honest old farmer, yammering because he lost his two hundred dollars. He never says a word about the grove.

And the beautiful pine trees are gone—gone forever.

A Presidential Diary

YELLOWSTONE CITY—Speech to-day commending men of Yellowstone County as hardy descendants of hardy pioneers. Added that any country settled by Forty-niners was bound to have an intelligent and progressive population.

Learned later that there were no Forty-niners here until perhaps '60. However, what's the difference?—they might have been here if they had known about the place.

Mountain sheep main feature of dinner this evening. Luckily the town has no famous dishes.

Geyserville—About the same speech here as at Yellowstone City, and it made a great hit, as this was one of the great mining camps. Corned beef and cabbage was the bill of fare to-night. Very fine.

Silvertown—Made stirring speech on the hardy pioneers who settled the great State of Nevada, carving a Commonwealth out of the rocks and hills, extracting the precious metal from the ground and winning a magnificent country from the Indians and grizzly bears. Wound up with a toast to the men of Nevada, the finest body of Americans in the Union.

Not much enthusiasm. Discovered next day that Silvertown is in California. Got it mixed up with Silverwing.

Roast squirrel and fried rattlesnake the feature of the banquet. Got a roast beef sandwich when I got back to my car.

Canyon Falls—Opened a large irrigating ditch here and made a great speech about desert blooming like the rose.

Vegetarian banquet—apples, baked, fried, boiled, stewed and soused; potatoes, fried, baked, grilled, roasted, mangled and mashed; cabbage divorced from corned beef; egg plant, oyster plant, lobster plant and plain plant, etc., etc.

Loupgarou Parish Corners—Terrapin the main incident of stay here.
Terrapin.

Possumville—Banquet of ham and eggs. Great.

Wayside—See my predecessor is happily eating hippopotamus foot and elephant tail soup. Wish I could dodge these banquets for some such fare as that. Golf course here. Went around in 71. Very obliging people in the Country Club.

Atlgalveston—Cannot eat my way much farther. Must say my voice is failing.

MY LOVE WORKS IN A GREENHOUSE

IN a small New Hampshire village, on a drear October night,
A livery stable keeper met a maid his troth to plight.
The man was tall and handsome in a Denman Thompson way,
The maid might well have been a queen, she was so proud, yet gay.
The livery stable keeper, after he had asked her hand,
Endeavored to embrace her, but for that she wouldn't stand.
"Oh, tell me why upon this breast you will not rest your head."
She looked into his whiskered face and unto him she said:

CHORUS:

"My love works in a greenhouse,
There always is a smell
Of violets and geraniums
About it, cool and swell.
Mind you, I do not blame you,
I'm making no complaint,
But a greenhouse has a fragrance
That a livery stable hain't."

II.

Her honest suitor heard her words, and all the world turned gray,
Without reply he bowed his head and slowly walked away.
A jealous rage then him did seize, and to the greenhouse door
He came as soon as possible, and entered with a roar.
There stood the favored sweetheart beside a large glass frame,
He shuddered like a quitter when he noticed who had came.
A deadly battle followed, both men were killed that day,
And now the foolish girl regrets the words that she did say.

CHORUS:

"My love works in a greenhouse," etc.
